CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM OF THE
NAVAL SHORE ESTABLISHMENT

BY REAR ADM. BEN MOREELL,
(CEC), USN

Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks

It is a well known fact that the development of the shore establishment of the Navy lagged far behind in providing the necessary facilities that were essential for even the peace time Navy as it existed prior to 1938. This was due to the economic condition which had resulted in a general curtailment of funds for the shore establishment. Now, in the face of a crucial period and the newly organized "Three Fleet Navy," the shore establishment must not only be brought up-to-date, but must be rapidly expanded to meet the needs of tremendous increases in the operating forces and radical changes in the method of Naval and aerial warfare.

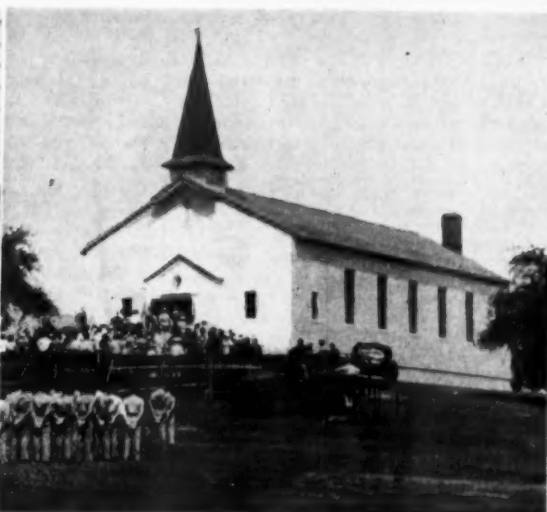

Under the shore establishment are the continental Navy Yards which are the home bases of the fleet and accomplish the overhaul and repair work of the fleet and in addition in some cases are construction yards as well. These are supplemented by supply and fuel bases and ammunition depots, training stations and the Naval air stations. In the Pacific, Alaska, the Caribbean and more recently in the sites acquired by leases from Great Britain are the advance operating and repair bases for both the fleet and its air craft. These bases, many of which are new, are now being expanded and rushed to completion.

Contracts for Air Bases

The Bureau of Yards and Docks began the present construction program with award of contracts in the summer of 1940 for the air bases in the Pacific, Alaska and Caribbean and with improvements at the air stations at Pensacola and the new air stations at Jacksonville, Fla., and Alameda, Calif. In June 1940 this program expanded to cover the air stations at Quonset Point, R. I., Norfolk, additional expansion at Jacksonville, Pensacola and the new air stations at Corpus Christi, Tongue Point, Oregon, and a large amount of work at all of the major Navy yards. Over $200,000,000 in contracts were awarded in the months of June and July 1940. In a period of little over one year $800,000,000 of work has been placed under contract and this is being accomplished at an expenditure rate in excess of $50,000,000 per month.

The country's best construction firms have been secured to accomplish this work and are exceeding expectations in the rate of its performance. The Pacific Island bases and the Alaskan sites involve long transportation hauls, unusual climatic conditions and locations where the thousands of workmen on the site have no recreational or other diversions. In spite of the severe competition for labor from the enormous building program under way in the United States these jobs have been manned and efficiently carried on. As an example the contract for the Naval air station at

New Warrant Officer
Rank Asked for Navy

Legislation to set up additional commissioned warrant officer grades in the Navy and Marine Corps was introduced into Congress this week by Representative Vinson, of Ga.

The chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee introduced the measure, H. R. 5483, on his own initiative. The bill was not sponsored by the Navy Department, which in the past has opposed such legislation when proposed.

There are indications, however, that the department will not actively oppose this bill because of sentiment in Congress and among warrant officers for a promotion incentive. In fact, the Navy Department has already sent the bill to the Bureau of the Budget for comments, without waiting for the Naval Committee formally to request such action.

Under the proposed bill, commissioned warrant officers of the Navy and Marine Corps may be appointed as commissioned warrant ensign, commissioned warrant lieutenant (junior grade) and commissioned warrant lieutenants. Such officers would have the rank, pay and allowances of ensign, lieutenant (jg) and lieutenant, respectively, but "no officer shall suffer diminution of his pay or allowances by reason of appointment of promotion pursuant to this act."

Active proponents of the measure are Representatives Magnuson and Maas, members of the Naval Committee. Lt. Col. Mevin Maas, USMCR, is now on short-term active duty.

A few months ago, six Navy warrant officers were brought before the committee to testify on personnel legislation. At that time they criticized the present warrant officer system as offering no incen-

Army Extends Officer Schools

The present program of Officer Candidate Schools will be expanded to provide opportunity for one in each 100 soldiers to receive a commission, the War Department announced this week. Under the new plan the annual program will be increased from 10,400 to 14,280 men. Candidates become eligible after six months of training.

Funds will be made available to increase the capacities of the present schools by providing construction for the additional trainees as shown below:

	Additional Present Capacity Capacity Required
Air Corps (a)
Infantry School	600 300
Field Artillery School	250 250
Coast Artillery School	200 200
Cavalry School	100 ...
Engineer School (b)	230 ...
Signal Corps School (b)	500 ...
Ordnance School (b)	100 ...
Quartermaster School (b)	150 150
Medical School	200 50
Armored Force School	250 ...
Chemical Warfare Service	20 ...
Finance School	20 ...
	2600 970

(a) To be trained as indicated in note (b) below.

(b) Includes men from Air Corps, as follows: Signal School, 25; Ordnance School, 10; Engineer School, 10; Quartermaster School, 5; total 50.

Until adequate construction becomes available the present program will be continued. This provides a total of 2,600 trainees for each three-month course or 10,400 per annum.

The present Officer Candidate Schools provide officer training for outstanding men who have already demonstrated high qualities of leadership through actual service in the Army. The schools are conducted where the candidates can receive the best possible instructions in the latest

Army "Plucking" Board
Will Be Created Soon

A list of active and retired Army generals to constitute the "plucking" board which will operate in accordance with legislation approved last week has been drawn up by the Personnel Section (G-1) of the War Department General Staff, but absence of General George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, from Washington has delayed final naming of the board.

It is expected that General Marshall and Secretary of War Stimson, who is charged by the new law with the naming of the board, will collaborate closely in selecting the five general officers who will constitute the board. To assist them in the selection, G-1 has prepared a list containing the names of a number of senior active and retired generals who would be available for work on the board.

Names of members of the board will not be published, but since the law gives every officer the right to appear before the board the membership is likely to be made known in due course.

The new involuntary retirement machinery, however, has gone into action already, since the board does not come into the picture until names of officers recommended for retirement have reached it through the channels of command. The board does not initiate action against any officer.

Chiefs of Arms and Services are surveying their officers to recommend individual cases for board action. Those singled out will be notified by the Adjutant General on a special form, an example of which was printed on the first page of last week's issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

It was stated by General Marshall in his testimony in support of the plucking bill before the House and Senate Military Affairs Committees that first action of the board would be against approximately 100 officers, nearly all in the grades of colonel and lieutenant colonel, who by their very seniority were in a position to impede progress of the defense program, wherever assigned.

Even the notification of any officer that he has been recommended for removal from the active list of the Army will not necessarily mean that the board will act. To keep their records clear, it is probable that a number of officers so notified will choose to apply for retirement, rather than await board action and have noted on their record in the Army Register: "After blank years' service. (Act of 29 July 1941)" which will stand out as does the present notation: "After blank years' service. (Sec. 24b, Act 4 June 20)."

Officers may apply for retirement either under the 15-to-29 year law, the more than 30 years' service law, or for physical disability.

Commanding generals of the field armies, who have set up reclassification boards to recommend to the Secretary of War reclassification or removal of National Guard and Reserve officers, will begin to process recommendations against Regular Army officers in a similar manner. The field boards will consider the cases, and if they feel an officer should be retired they will forward his name to the general-officer board.

Press Favors Legislation to Hold Selectees, Reservists and Guardsmen

The nation's press this week turned to comment on President Roosevelt's request that Congress adopt legislation to permit retention of National Guardsmen, Reservists, and selectees in active service during the current emergency. With this legislation now before Congress, a consensus of opinion of the nation's editorial writers is highly interesting at this time. In preparing the following, it was noteworthy that of a total of 48 editorials appearing in various papers throughout the nation, 45 of the editorials favored such legislation, while three opposed it.

The Herald Tribune, of New York, N. Y., says, "There is not a person in the country who would demobilize the defense effort today, and it is obvious that we cannot afford to disintegrate the Army, still only half-trained, at the very moment when the defense effort is just rising toward its maximum. 'We Americans cannot afford to speculate with the security of America.' For that argument, in the actual situation before the country, there is no argument." Similarly, the Philadelphia, Pa., Record says, "The Record supports President Roosevelt's call upon Congress wholeheartedly and without reservation. We support also his request that restrictions be lifted upon the number of selectees inducted each year—the limit in the law is now 900,000—so the size of the Army may be kept constantly abreast of the nation's need. If no emergency exists; if the President is wholly or even largely wrong—then our arms building, our vast spending program of 50 billion dollars, our whole selective service act itself are all a false alarm." The Record concludes, "Let Congress move faster than it has ever moved before to keep our Army intact, keep the nation ready—keep America secure."

The Cincinnati, Ohio, Enquirer explains, "When a young man has completed his year's training under the Selective Service Act as it now stands, he is mustered out subject to recall in case of emergency. What this means, in effect, is that selectees would hardly be free agents in any case, so long as the international situation remains so precarious. They would return home under a pall of uncertainty as to when they would be recalled—an uncertainty which would interfere with any plans they might make or complicate any employment agreements." The Enquirer continues, "The nation has hardly the right to expect one group of young men to remain forever in the army, and this emphatically is not the intent of the proposal to extend the period of service. When the future can be seen a little more clearly, and when our national defense requirements are more fully attended to, there will not be the present need for requesting continued sacrifice and duty by the selectees."

The Star-Times, of St. Louis, Mo., says "The national controversy over whether the draftees shall be retained 'for the duration' or permitted to become half-trained reservists to the detriment of national safety hinges primarily upon the willingness of Congress to say that the present national emergency is, in fact, a national emergency. Yet, in effect, Congress has already done that, for the lend-lease law, the recent defense appropriations and other measures have been postulated upon the existence of a great national peril. Such laws would have been roared down if Congress had not deemed the national interest to be in acute danger."

The New York Times, strongly supporting the President with regard to keeping selectees, Reservists, and Guardsmen in service, says, "The only real questions are how promptly Congress will act and by what majorities. An immediate endorsement of the President's recommendation in both branches of Congress would be worth ten battleships. It would warn Japan, shake Germany, cheer Britain, and give fresh impetus to democracy in every corner of the world."

Opposed to the proposed legislation, the New York News points out, "The President also asked Congress to remove the statutory limitations holding to a maximum of 900,000 the number of draftees who may be used in the Army at any one time. That would take all lids off the size of the Army, now about 1,450,000. Yet Chief of Staff George C. Marshall testified that with a well-trained and well-equipped Army of about 1,500,000 men he believed he could defend the Western Hemisphere."

Senate Approves Service Retention

By the narrow margin of five votes the Senate late on 7 Aug. passed legislation extending by 18 months the maximum service of all personnel of the Army of the United States.

The measure affects National Guardsmen, Reserve officers and enlisted reservists, retired personnel on duty, Regular Army enlisted men and selectees.

Also adopted, by a 39-34 vote, was an amendment giving enlisted men $10 a month for each month served in excess of one year.

Final vote on the bill itself, 40-35, came after the rejection of many amendments proposing various limitations on service, and the "without limit" provision of the original S. J. Res. 95. Also voted down were proposals to pay men retained $30 a month for each month in excess of 12, and a proposal to increase pay 25 per cent.

Whether the House will receive the Senate bill or pass its own legislation, H. J. Res. 222, a counterpart of the original Senate measure.

The pay section adopted by the Senate stated:

Sec. 9. Any person inducted into the land or naval forces of the United States for the training and service provided for by the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940 shall, in addition to the amounts otherwise payable to such person with respect to such training and service, be entitled to receive the sum of $10 for each month of such training and service in excess of twelve.

The extension of service provision adopted by the Senate provided:

That the extension of the period of active military service, or training and service, in the case of any person subject to the provisions of this section, shall not, without his consent, exceed 18 months; except that, whenever the Congress declares that it is in the interests of national defense to further extend such periods of active military service and training and service, such periods may be further extended by the President, in the case of any such persons, for such time as may be necessary in the interests of national defense;

During the lengthy debate on the bill, Senator Downey explained that under the amendment he proposed, the men should receive an additional sum of $30 per month for the excess time served in the Army beyond one year.

Senator Downey insisted that the quality of pure justice required the adoption of the amendment.

He quoted Gen. Marshall as describing the type of man of superlative ability and energy, whom the Army wanted, a man who in private life would be a most valuable and highly paid individual. These men are taken from their homes and careers and subject to strict, though necessary, discipline. "What do we pay them?" he asked. "We give them what is equivalent to $80 or $85 a month while we are paying a basic minimum wage of $125 or $150 per month to the workers in defense industries."

Senator Wheeler, agreeing with Senator Downey, remarked that Canadians called into service receive $40 per month, and the Californian observed that the per capita wealth in the Dominion was much less than that in the United States.

Senator Tobey, of N. Hamp., concurred in the views of Senators Downey and Wheeler. He declared that the country could not afford not to increase the compensation of the men. "I know from my own correspondence and acquaintance with men in the service that after receiving their monthly pay checks they have about $5.50 left after paying for their laundry and other expenses."

Senator Walsh, of Mass., and Senator Hill, of Ala., both stated that they were impressed by the smallness of the amount received by a private after deductions were made.

"What has troubled me very much," Mr. Walsh said, "is the disparity between the amount of money paid to the worker who makes munitions and the amount of money paid to the soldier who handles them and who offers his life and sacrifices it, if necessary for the protection of his country, and also the fact that no one today can be a good soldier under the conditions of modern warfare, unless he becomes an experienced mechanic. I confess that I have been distressed to think we are asking young men to serve our country for the meager amount we pay them. I am convinced that the only way to have a sound, up-to-date, modern, thoughtful, powerful defense army is through the voluntary system; and I am convinced the voluntary system can never be realized unless we offer largely increased pay over that which we are paying today. I am convinced that we could get all the men we would need to make a career in the Army if we offered the same pay, as we ought to do, which is provided for workers in navy yards and arsenals, for these men must become highly trained experts and engage in a life work. I think the sooner we turn our attention to that phase of the fundamental problem, the better."

Senator Hill declared that Congress was far more to blame for the present inadequate standard of pay than the Army, because the annual reports of the Chiefs of Staff and Naval Operations, have stated and urged upon Congress the necessity of a study of the pay question.

Senator Wheeler interpolated the charge that the Navy Band participated in a New York rally of the Friends of Democracy, and that the band and the Navy were being used to draw crowds. He also declared that at one time General Marshall said that we need an Army of only 375,000 men, then from 450,000 to 500,000 for the defense of the Western Hemisphere. He insisted we have a Navy to defend the Western Hemisphere, and asked what do the military men want—a mechanically trained professional Army of 450,000 or a vast Army to be used as an expeditionary force?

Senator Wheeler objected to the prohibition of Army personnel to write to their senators and representatives, denounced Secretaries Stimson and Knox as reactionary Republicans, and described "Wild Bill" Donovan as the head of the American Gestapo.

There was considerable discussion as to the effect of the law exempting men of 28 years and over who had not been called. Senator Hill explained that it was the express intention of the Chief of Staff and others who spoke for the War Department to release men of 28 years of age and over as rapidly as possible. The idea of the Committee and the War Department is that the men will be released as rapidly as possible consistent with the interests of defense.

Senator Clark, of Missouri, argued that under the joint resolution as drawn, any man who has been drafted into the Army of the United States, could be kept in it for life. He could be retained in the service for life.

Numerous other senators demanded that the proposed law be clarified so that men over 28 years of age would not be compelled to remain in service indefinitely, this applying not only to the selectees but to the National Guard and Reserves.

The debate centered for some hours on the question of whether troops would be sent outside of the Western Hemisphere, though no authority for such action appears in the bill. Senator Danaher declared that the interventionists want a large Army, want it on German soil to defeat Germany by invasion. Senator Shipstead pointed out that the military program of a nation must always be subordinated to its political program. If the Chief of Staff has found it necessary to change our military program, we have a right to believe that the political program also has been changed. Senator Taft declared there is apparently almost unanimous agreement in the Administration, in the Congress, and in the country at large on the need for a completely efficient and adequate Army for the defense of the United States. We all admit, he said, that we do not want an Army which could only be needed if another A.E.F. were in contemplation.

Name Provost Marshal General

Maj. Gen. Allen W. Gullion, the Judge Advocate General, this week was named also as Provost Marshal General.

General Gullion's new task will be to make plans for the training of military policemen, supervise activities of military police and to prepare for possible measures for the internal security of the country.

At the same time it was indicated that the number of military police soon would be expanded from approximately 4,000 to nearly 50,000. It is planned to instruct these new military policemen in special schools to be set up. A training manual covering military police activities is now in preparation and is scheduled to go to the printer shortly.

In order that General Gullion may give as much time as possible to his new work, most of the duties of the Judge Advocate General not required to be performed by him personally by law have been delegated to his assistant, Col. E. C. McNeil.

Commissions in Army of U. S.

The Senate is expected to take up this coming week legislation reported last week by its Military Affairs Committee which would authorize commissions directly in the Army of the United States, of graduates of officer candidate schools and certain specialists without sufficient military background to be Reserve officers.

The measure, H. J. Res. 199 already has been passed by the House.

The Journal Salutes

This week the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL salutes:

Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Army of U. S., on his appointment as director of the Selective Service System.

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, ORC, on assuming command of the Washington Provisional Brigade.

Navy Warrant Officers

time for work since advancement was out of the question. Most enlisted men reach warrant rank at a comparatively early age, but are usually too old at that time to qualify for appointment as commissioned officers. After they reach commissioned warrant rank (chief warrant officer) the door to further advancement is now barred, and such men must continue in that rank until retirement after 30 years' service or at age 64.

Text of the bill, as introduced, follows: Be it enacted, etc., That the President may, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate and in accordance with the provisions of this Act, appoint commissioned warrant officers of the Regular Navy and the Regular Marine Corps to the commissioned grades herein provided.

Sec. 2. There are hereby established in the Regular Navy the following additional commissioned warrant officer grades: Commissioned warrant ensign, commissioned warrant lieutenant (junior grade), and commissioned warrant lieutenant. Officers of these grades shall have the rank, pay, and allowances of ensign, lieutenant (junior grade), and lieutenant, respectively. The titles of officers of these grades shall be the same as for commissioned officers of the staff corps of like rank except that the title formerly held as a warrant officer shall be substituted for the name of the staff corps. The uniforms and equipment of such officers shall be the same as prescribed for other commissioned officers of like rank except that the distinguished insignia shall be the insignia now or hereafter prescribed by the Secretary of the Navy for warrant officers.

Sec. 3. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the number of officers commissioned in the grades established by section 2 hereof plus the number of warrant and commissioned warrant officers shall not exceed a total number bearing the same relationship to the enlisted strength of the Navy, as now or hereafter authorized, as the total number of warrant and commissioned warrant officers on the date of approval of this Act bears to the authorized enlisted strength of the Navy on that date: Provided, That the total number of warrant and commissioned warrant officers of all grades shall be distributed in the proportions of one in the grade of commissioned warrant lieutenant to two in the grade of commissioned warrant lieutenant (junior grade) to three in the grade of commissioned warrant ensign to four in the grades of commissioned warrant officer and warrant officer: Provided further, That in the computation of numbers under this section reference shall be had only to officers serving on the active list of the Navy: And provided further, That officers of commissioned warrant grades shall not be counted in the determination of totals or percentages provided for the administration of laws relative to other commissioned officers of the Navy.

Sec. 4. Commissioned warrant officers after three years of service as such shall be eligible for promotion to the grade of commissioned warrant ensign, commissioned warrant lieutenant after three years of service as such shall be eligible for promotion to the grade of commissioned warrant lieutenant (junior grade), and commissioned warrant lieutenants (junior grade) after seven years of service as such shall be eligible for promotion to the grade of commissioned warrant lieutenant: Provided, That officers shall not be considered eligible for promotion under this section until they shall have been selected for promotion in the manner now prescribed by law for the selection for promotion of lieutenants (junior grade) of the line or staff corps, as appropriate: Provided further, That the recommendation of the selection board in respect to such officers shall be based upon their comparative fitness for the duties prescribed for them by section 8 of this Act: Provided further, That officers so selected for promotion shall be subject to examinations, in like manner and with like consequences, as now prescribed by law for the promotion of commissioned officers of the Navy of comparable rank: And provided further, That no officer shall be promoted except to fill an existing vacancy in the higher grade.

Sec. 5. Commissioned warrant officers, notwithstanding the provisions of section 4 hereof and until six months after the date of the approval of this Act, shall be eligible for appointment to the commissioned warrant grades, established by section 2 hereof, as follows: With more than three but less than six years of service as such to the grade of commissioned warrant ensign, with more than six but less than thirteen years of service as such to the grade of commissioned warrant lieutenant (junior grade), and with more than thirteen years of service as such to the grade of commissioned warrant lieutenant: Provided, That no officer shall be so appointed until after selection and examination as prescribed in section 4 hereof.

Sec. 6. Officers of commissioned warrant grades who twice fail of selection for promotion in successive years shall be placed upon the retired list on 30 June of the fiscal year in which they fail of selection the second time, with pay computed at the rate of 2½ per centum of the pay received at the time of retirement multiplied by the number of years of total active service in the Regular Navy: Provided, That failure of selection pursuant to section 5 shall not be considered as a failure of selection for the purposes of this section: Provided further, That for the purpose of computing retired pay, a fractional part of a year of service shall, if less than six months, be disregarded and, if six months or more, shall be regarded as a full year.

Sec. 7. (Usual retirement provision.)
Sec. 8. Officers commissioned in the grades established by this Act shall be restricted to the performance of duties customarily performed by commissioned warrant officers of their specialties—such as chief boatswains, chief gunners, chief carpenters, and the like, except that they may be assigned to other duties when the exigencies of the service, as determined by the commanding officer, so require.

Sec. 9. (Act applies to Marine Corps with necessary modifications.)
Sec. 10. (No reduction in pay provision.)

Lower Draft Ages

After weeks of debate, in which the House refused to accept plant-seizure provisions in a bill, S. 1524, designed to lower maximum age for selective service from 35 to 28 years, the Senate this week agreed to eliminate its extraneous features, and a modified bill, accepted by both Houses, was sent to the President.

The bill provides also for publication of classifications by draft boards and for releasing from liability for selective service men discharged from the Regular Army or Coast Guard for the convenience of the government before serving three years.

Text of the bill as passed follows: Be it enacted, etc., That section 5 (b) (1) of the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, as amended, is hereby amended by inserting before the colon the following: "or any enlisted man who has been or is hereafter honorably discharged from the Regular Army or the Coast Guard for the convenience of the Government within six months prior to the completion of his regular three-year period of enlistment."

Sec. 2. Section 5 (e) of the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940 is amended by adding "(1)" after "(e)", and by adding at the end thereof the following: "Rules and regulations issued pursuant to this subsection shall include provisions requiring that there be posted in a conspicuous place at the office of each local board a list setting forth the names and classifications of those men who have been classified by such local board."

"(2) Anything in this Act to the contrary notwithstanding, there shall be deferred from training and service under this Act in the land and naval forces of the United States until Congress shall declare otherwise, the men who, on the 1st day of July 1941, or on the 1st day of July of any subsequent year, (1) are liable for such training and service, (2) have not been inducted into the land or naval forces for such training and service, and (3) have attained the twenty-eighth anniversary of the day of their birth: Provided, That any of such men may after volunteering for induction be inducted pursuant and subject to the provisions of section 3 (a) of this Act: Provided further, That the Secretary of War shall, as soon as practicable and when not in conflict with the interests of national defense, release from active training and service under section 3 (b) of this Act, and transfer to a reserve component of the land forces for the same period and with the same rights, duties, and liabilities, as any other person transferred to a reserve component of the land forces under the provisions of section 3 (c) of this Act, regardless of his period of training and service, any person who has heretofore been inducted into the land forces under this Act, who requests such release, and who had attained the twenty-eighth anniversary of the day of his birth on or prior to 1 July 1941, and prior to such induction: Provided further, That any person so released under this paragraph who, in the judgment of those in authority over him, has served satisfactorily shall be entitled to a certificate to that effect which shall be in the same form and have the same force and effect as a certificate issued under the provisions of section 8 of this Act."

Director of Public Relations

BRIG. GEN. ALEXANDER D. SURLS

Secretary of War Stimson this week announced that Brig. Gen. Alexander D. Surles, will be the new Director of the War Department Bureau of Public Relations, filling the vacancy caused by the recent transfer of Maj. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, Jr., to command the VII Army Corps at Birmingham, Alabama.

At the same time, it was announced that Lt. Col. Royal B. Lord, CE, deputy chief, who has been serving as temporary director of the bureau, has been renamed deputy chief in the Bureau of Public Relations, and will serve under General Surles, who will assume his new duties the first part of next week.

General Surles, who completed a tour of duty two years ago as chief of the Press Branch of the War Department, was born in Wisconsin on 14 August 1886. He is a graduate of the United States Military Academy, and was commissioned a second lieutenant of Cavalry in 1911. He is also a graduate of the Command and General Staff School, and from the Cavalry School Advanced Course. The new public relations director was made a temporary brigadier general on 10 July 1941.

Officer Candidate Schools

techniques of their Arms and Services. This consideration has led to the decision to expand the present schools where skilled instructor-personnel and adequate instruction facilities are available rather than to establish schools in divisions or armies. While such latter schools could be started with little delay, they would not provide the same uniformity and opportunities in training now obtained in the special service schools.

In order to avoid the selection and detail to an Officer Candidate School of enlisted men whose appointments may be subsequently rejected by reason of prior unsatisfactory civil or military record, the War Department has issued orders to all commanding generals, all armies and departments that an affidavit be secured from each applicant as to whether he has ever been convicted by a civil or military court, with the date and circumstances attending such conviction. The order indicated that records of enlisted men selected for attendance at Officer Candidate schools, in many instances, revealed unsatisfactory prior service which has resulted in trial and conviction by court martial for serious offenses. In some instances, the orders stated, the record would operate as a bar to appointment in the Officers' Reserve Corps.

Officers to Air Commands

Col. William E. Lynd has been appointed chief of staff of the Air Support Command and Col. Hume Peabody has been named commanding officer of the 2nd Air Support Command, according to an announcement this week by the War Department. Temporary headquarters of the Air Support Command will be at the Army War College.

Colonel Lynd was formerly air officer of the General Headquarters in the War Department. Colonel Peabody was formerly G-4 of the Air Forces Combat Command.

The locations of the Headquarters of the five new Air Support Commands are as follows:

1st Command, Mitchel Fld., Long Island, New York; 2nd Command, Oklahoma City Air Base, Okla.; 3rd Command, Savannah Air Base, Ga.; 4th Command, Hamilton Fld., Calif.; 5th Command, Bowman Fld., Louisville, Ky.

New GHQ Field Artillery Units

A new organization, known as The Ft. Bragg Provisional Field Artillery Brigade, has been formed for the purpose of facilitating the administration and training of all General Headquarters field artillery units stationed at Ft. Bragg, N. C., the War Department announced this week.

Col. John T. Kennedy, FA, has been assigned as commander of the new organization, which will consist of a headquarters, a headquarters detachment and nine field artillery regiments and battalions which are assigned to the general headquarters reserve, Lt. Col. Harold A. Cooney, FA, will be executive officer of the new brigade.

The units, which now have a strength of about 8,000 men, are as follows: 79th Regt. (240-mm Howitzer); 112th Regt. (75-mm Horse-drawn); 4th Bn. (75-mm Howitzer-Pack); 6th Bn. (75-mm Horse-drawn); 97th Bn. (75-mm Howitzer-Pack); 47th Regt. (105-mm Howitzer); 72nd Regt. (105-mm Howitzer); 3rd Observation Bn.; 7th Field Artillery Observation Bn. The latter four units are in process of formation.

The change relieves the 13th Field Artillery Brigade, of a heavy administrative burden, for the nine units had been attached to it. Among the GHQ units there exists a great diversity of organization, transportation equipment, armament and degree of training.

THE UNITED STATES ARMY

New Army Generals

The Senate this week confirmed the appointment of six brigadier generals to be temporary major generals, and ten colonels to be temporary brigadier generals of the Army of the United States. Also confirmed was the promotion of Maj. Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, as a permanent major general, U. S. Army.

The officers nominated for promotion with their present assignments follow:

To be Temporary Major Generals, Army of the United States

Brig. Gen. Charles T. Harris, Jr., Assistant Chief of Ordnance, Washington, D. C.

Brig. Gen. Simon B. Buckner, Jr., commanding the troops in Alaska with headquarters at Ft. Richardson, Alaska.

Brig. Gen. Oscar W. Griswold, commanding the Infantry Replacement Training Center at Camp Croft, S. C.

Brig. Gen. John P. Lucas, commanding the 3rd Division, Ft. Lewis, Wash.

Brig. Gen. Davenport Johnson, Assistant Chief of the Air Corps, Washington, D. C.

To be Temporary Brigadier Generals, Army of the United States

Col. Homer R. Oldfield, CAC, Panama Canal Department.

Col. Jesse A. Ladd, Inf., Ft. Ord, Calif.

Col. George R. Meyer, (CAC), GSC, Panama Canal Department.

Col. Albert E. Brown, (Inf.), GSC, Chief of the Budget and Legislative Branch, War Department General Staff, Washington, D. C.

Col. Alexander M. Patch, Inf., 47th Inf., Ft. Bragg, N. C.

Col. Orlando Ward, (FA), GSC, Secretary of the War Department General Staff, Washington, D. C.

Col. George E. Stratmeyer, Air Corps, Executive Officer, Office Chief of Air Corps, Washington, D. C.

Lt. Col. Mark W. Clark, (Inf.), GSC, General Headquarters, Army War College, Washington, D. C.

Lt. Col. Muir S. Fairchild, Air Corps, Office Chief of Air Corps, Washington, D. C.

Col. Frayne Baker, Inf., National Guard of the United States, 34th Div., at Camp Claiborne, La.

Of the ten brigadier generals, it is interesting to note, that one—Brig. Gen. Frayne Baker, Inf., NGUS—was from a component other than the regular Army. The Regulars, six major generals and nine brigadier generals had their earlier service as follows: Infantry, seven; Air Corps, three; Field Artillery, two; Coast Artillery, two, and Ordnance, one. Four of the nine Regular Army colonels were on detail with the General Staff Corps.

As to ages, the entire group had an average age of slightly over 52 years, the major generals running from 51 to 57 years with the average being about 54½ years; and the brigadier generals running from 45 to 54 years with an average of just one-tenth short of 50 years.

All the six major generals are graduates of the Military Academy and the Army War College, and one was also a graduate of the Army Industrial College. Of the ten brigadier generals, seven entered the Regular Army through the Military Academy, one from the Naval Academy and two from other sources. All ten brigadier generals attended the Army War College, nine graduated from the Command and General Staff School; one from the Industrial College and two from the Naval War College.

The senior colonel selected was number 244 on the promotion list (April 1941 A. L. & D.). The junior officers selected was Lt. Col. Muir S. Fairchild, AC, who stood number 133 on the list of majors when that directory was compiled 20 April 1941.

Unit Redesignated

The Base Detachment, Pope Field, N. C., has been redesignated as the 92nd Air Base Squadron (Special).

Gen. Cox Takes Over Brigade

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, ORC, last week reviewed the units of the Washington Provisional Brigade of which he assumed command 28 June.

Greeted by an 11-gun salute, General Cox, former director of selective service for the District of Columbia, arrived at Ft. Myer, Va., on 1 Aug., and was escorted by a cavalry troop to a reviewing stand.

Surrounded by his brigade staff and by the selective service staff which he formerly commanded, General Cox watched his troops pass in review.

First to pass was the Headquarters Company, followed by the 302d Military Police Battalion. Next in line came the 3rd Cavalry with its band, and Battery C of the 55th Field Artillery.

Gen. Chaffee Gets Dual Honors

The President on Monday sent to the Senate the nomination of Maj. Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, USA, for permanent appointment as major general in the Regular Army, while on the same day the War Department announced that General Chaffee had been awarded an Oak-Leaf Cluster citation for his Distinguished Service Medal. The Senate confirmed the nomination the same day. General Chaffee at present holds a temporary appointment as major general in the Army of the United States. Until recently he was in command of the Armored Force.

The Oak-Leaf Cluster was presented to General Chaffee at a Boston hospital where he is seriously ill. Lt. Col. G. X. Cheves, liaison officer of the Armored Force, representing the Secretary of War, presented the award with the citation: "for exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services in a position of great responsibility in which General Chaffee displayed outstanding foresight, judgment and leadership in organizing and commanding the Armored Force of the Army."

General Chaffee recently relinquished command of the Armored Force because of his illness. His successor is Maj. Gen. Jacob L. Devers.

Money Orders at Post Exchanges

Due to the need for the sale of some form of commercial money orders and travelers checks at posts, camps and stations for the convenience of military personnel, the War Department this week issued instructions to all post commanders authorizing them to permit the sale of money orders and travelers checks by reputable financial organizations at Army post exchanges. The financial organization which carries on the sale of the checks or money orders may be operated independently or under post supervision or through the exchanges.

If the company operates independently of the exchange and occupies real estate on the reservation on its own account, a license or lease will be required. If the company operates through the exchange, either of the following arrangements will be required: The company may operate under a concession contract with the exchange, occupying premises set aside for exchange use, in which case the contract must make it clear that any commission paid the exchange is in consideration for services and not for use of the premises occupied; or the exchange may itself, using its own personnel, sell the money orders and travelers checks for the company and receive a commission for services rendered.

When the company operates through the exchange, the sales of money orders and travelers checks are limited to individuals authorized by Army regulations to purchase from the exchange.

The first price agreements on goods sold at Army post exchanges have been signed by the manufacturers and War Department officials, it was announced this week. The agreements are part of the action being taken by the newly created Army Exchange Service to obtain the lowest possible price on articles desired by soldiers. Price lists covered by the new agreements have been sent to all the post exchanges in the field.

Manufacturers of articles in demand by soldiers are invited to apply to the Purchasing Section, Army Exchange Service, Morale Branch, War Department, Washington, D. C. This organization deals directly with the manufacturer, and not with brokers or other intermediaries.

Seventh Corps Area Notes

Brig. Gen. F. E. Uhl, 7th Corps Area Commander, accompanied by Lt. Col. E. E. Brown and Lt. Col. G. C. Greenwalt, flew to Burlington, Iowa, Thursday, 31 July, to participate in the dedication of the Iowa Ordnance plant. The dedication speech was made by Vice President Henry A. Wallace, native Iowan.

No society blue book ever chose its registrants with more investigation than does this organization who puts applicants through a G-man test before allowing them to fraternize with the soldiers.

There will be a $125,000 motor repair shop at Ft. Crook, Nebraska, soon. The project will include two repair shops, an oil house, a grease rack, and a wash rack.

Woman Selected by Army

In order that news of the Army may be made more understandable and interesting to women of America, the War Department last week selected Mrs. William P. Hobby, formerly assistant editor of the Houston Post, to head the newly created women's division in the War Department's Bureau of Public Relations.

Mrs. Hobby, who has been active in political affairs in Texas, speaking of her new job, says, "It is to tell the story of the Army to women along the lines they are more interested in — personalized news of their sons, husbands, brothers, and sweethearts." Mothers will be apprised of the giant housekeeping problems of the rapidly expanding Army, while wives and sweethearts will be kept informed about a recent Army innovation—hostesses.

Military training today differs vastly from military training of twenty years ago.

Tank units, Field Artillery units, Anti-Aircraft units, Engineer units, Motorized units, Signal units, nearly every type of modern military units operate in small groups. Field kitchens cannot be provided for every small unit, so "small-unit" feeding equipment is necessary in modern military field training.

A "one size Food Carrier for every purpose" does not meet modern requirements. A 7½ gallon carrier where a 2-gallon carrier is all that is needed or a heavy carrier loaded with food weighing 120 pounds where a light one loaded weighing 37 pounds would serve the purpose, does not meet conditions efficiently.

Four Standard sizes of AerVoiD Food Carriers, each equipped with food pan assemblies to transport either 1, 2, 3, 4 or 5 hot foods, makes it possible to secure "AerVoiDs" to fit any quantity or any number of hot foods up to five, to service any size unit. A big carrier for a small group means unnecessary excess weight and any carrier only partially filled cools out quicker.

Not only in "food" servicing, but in the servicing of "coffee and soups" AerVoiDs meet military requirements in a more "practical" manner. AerVoiD "Convertibles" are the only efficiently insulated and sturdily built carriers for hot soups, coffee and liquids available . . . six sizes to service any size group.

How many men will an AerVoiD feed?

The figures at the left are computed on the basis of approximately 1¼ pounds of hot food per person and at the generally accepted percentages of these three foods for feedings for men engaged in outdoor exercises. These figures are approximate and necessarily vary somewhat with the density of the foods and how solidly they are packed.

THE UNITED STATES NAVY and MARINE CORPS

Navy Uniform Regulations

The Navy new uniform regulations for 1941, superseding the regulations of 1922, are off the press and will soon be distributed to all ships and shore stations.

The new book, two years in preparation, is copiously illustrated and is the most comprehensive ever published by the Navy Department. Its 100 pages of regulations are supplemented by 94 plates containing nearly 400 illustrations of uniforms and accessories, including colored illustrations of medals and ribbons.

The regulations were drafted by a board composed of Capt. H. A. Badt, USN, senior member, representing the Bureau of Navigation; Comdr. F. P. Delahanty, Supply Corps, USN; Comdr. H. G. Hopwood, USN, Bureau of Navigation; Lt. Comdr. F. D. McCormick, USN, Bureau of Navigation; Lt. L. B. Southerland, USN, Bureau of Aeronautics; Lt. F. R. Lang, Medical Corps, USN; and Lt. (jg) H. A. Lamar, USNR, Bureau of Navigation, recorder.

An item of interest to officers in far-away sections of the globe is that all uniforms are illustrated in such detail that any good tailor anywhere could duplicate them.

Two new uniforms prescribed by the regulations are already in use. They are the new khaki working uniform and the tropical uniform consisting of shorts, short-sleeved shirt and a helmet which may be worn in lieu of cap or white hat. Specifications are also given for new special winter clothing, to be worn under conditions of extreme cold, including special jacket, trousers, helmet, goggles, face mask, arctic, and gloves.

There are few changes in uniforms other than the new ones prescribed. A change already announced is the turning of the eagle on the cap device to face right instead of left. This change was made after research into heraldic law revealed that a left-facing eagle is incorrect.

It has been nearly two decades since the last regulations were issued, and the new ones are designed to take into consideration minor changes in men's fashions, giving them a flexibility that may allow them to last longer than their predecessors. The phrase "of conventional cut" appears frequently. The specifications for commissioned officers' service white trousers is a good example: "Trousers shall be of plain design and cut in accordance with prevailing tailoring practice, bottom size to be between 18 and 22 inches, inclusive . . ." Thus an officer can be in style, whether small bottoms or bell bottoms be the fashion for trousers. The old regulations provided that dress shirts should open down the front, but in recent years it has been hard to buy dress shirts that did not open down the back. The new regulations say nothing about this, leaving it up to the current fashion, but they do provide that "the bosom shall be stiff and starched, without plaits and showing two shirt buttons above the waistcoat."

All laws and Navy regulations pertaining to uniforms have been compiled in the new publication for the first time. Previously it was necessary to look in a dozen different places for all such laws.

Another "first" is the chapter on nurses' uniforms, which are also illustrated.

Working uniforms now have shoulder marks instead of sleeve stripes to indicate rank.

All types of aiguillettes are illustrated for the first time. It is felt that the copious illustrations of these and other items should help Navy personnel in recognizing the significance of all uniforms, insignia and decorations—particularly the latter, which are shown in color.

Complete information on the proper care of uniforms is given—everything from how to remove chocolate stains to how to remove the shine from serge uniforms.

While the new uniform regulations set forth the specifications for all types of uniforms for the general naval and Marine Corps services, actual requirements have been modified by Alnav No. 93 of 12 Oct. 1940 which states that during the present emergency naval officers will be required to wear service dress blue and white uniforms only and Marine Corps Officers to wear only undress blue and white and summer and winter service uniforms. Alnav No. 93 also stated officers attending White House functions should be prepared to wear the uniform prescribed. Uniforms for functions at the U. S. Naval Academy are prescribed by the Superintendent. The order also discontinued white dress for Navy enlisted personnel for the duration.

Navy Starts Examinations

It was learned this week that due to the increased number of officers on duty in the Navy, that the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery has already begun conducting the annual officers' physical examinations. While in the past these examinations have been held in September, officers of the Bureau stated that due to the increase in the officer personnel it would be virtually impossible to hold all the examinations in a one-month period, therefore this year they will be conducted through August and September.

"No government will be disposed to violate our rights if it knows we have the means and are prepared and resolved to defend them."—JAMES MONROE.

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. Legislative assurance, now, that our land, sea, and air forces will be maintained at such strengths as may be determined by the War Department General Staff and the General Board of the Navy to be necessary to guard the nation and its interests against any enemy or combination of enemies.
2. Upward revision of pay schedules for commissioned, warrant and enlisted personnel, active and retired; all temporarily promoted officers to receive pay of grade in which serving.
3. A long range study by the General Board of the Navy to the end that an equitable and just system of promotion for the line and staff of the Navy and Marine Corps be enacted into law.
4. Revision of pension laws to assure service widows a living income.
5. Compensation for service personnel who use privately owned automobiles on government business.

CONGRESS HAS JUST ENACTED another bill providing for pay increases with length of service for Federal civil employees. It has kept the monthly base pay of the enlisted personnel of the Services at $21, which is automatically increased to $30 after four months of service. Had it been as generous with the men as it is with the civilian branches of the Government, it would have established the base pay at that which the CCC always has received, $30 per month. However, by what it has done, it has given legal recognition to the advance that has occurred in the cost of living. That recognition it has not extended to officers and yet the situation of this important group certainly is as embarrassing as that which Congress held justified salary increases for civil employees, who can vote, and for the seventh grade enlisted personnel. The compensation of officers was fixed two decades ago, and the changes then made were admittedly minor so that in effect the pay schedules of 1908 continue in force. In his Message to Congress advocating legislation to curb inflation, the President pointed out that the index of 28 basic commodities had advanced 50 per cent beyond the level of August 1939, and that the cost of living index has risen 5½ per cent from that of two years ago, and 3½ per cent since the beginning of the year. There are other official statistics which show that prior to the war, and especially since the first Roosevelt Administration began, a heavy increase in the cost of living had occurred, and contributing to it were the forty per cent reduction in the gold content of the dollar, and the various measures designed to obtain what the Farm Bloc describes as a parity price for farm products. Again, the House has just passed a new tax bill, which will take directly from the officers a higher percentage of their pay, and thus further reduce the compensation of those in the upper ranks. So while industrial workers, farmers, government employees and enlisted personnel, have benefited financially from Congressional enactments, the Commissioned Personnel has been discriminated against, and its stipend has a smaller purchasing power, and is about to be lowered through heavier taxes. We urge Congress to take steps immediately to correct what is an inequitable and burdensome situation, and thus promote morale and efficiency amongst the men who have the prime duty of command.

NOW that the Senate has voted to extend the period of service of the National Guard, Reserves and Selectees, and the House promises early action along the same lines, it is only fair to remark that Secretary Stimson is not the senile old gentleman he was described by his critics in debate. General Marshall was not lacking in candor in the views he expressed and the training of the troops is not as inept as was charged. The truth is Mr. Stimson is mentally vigorous and valuable in the office of Secretary of War, which is not surprising in view of his experience in the same office a quarter of a century ago, and in the office of Secretary of State during the Hoover Administration; and his influence with the President is probably greater than that of any other Cabinet Member. General Marshall, as the country knows, is a direct, straightforward soldier, who tells Congress the truth, unpalatable as it may be to one group or another. For example, when asked during a recent hearing before the House Military Affairs Committee whether in September, 1940, he had favored a three-year service period, he responded in the negative, adding that he regarded 18 months as a minimum, but would compromise on 15 months, and that the Army must have at least 12 months. Then he uttered this pregnant observation: "So I went from a cold military proposition to a plain, garden variety of political consideration." Representative Dirksen properly remarked this was "rather a refreshing and candid admission coming from the No. 1 soldier of the United States of America." It was, but it was made when our peril was less grave than it is today. Senators argued that in the light of what has happened since last September, and on the ground that we cannot afford to speculate with the security of America, the general's insistence upon extension of service for the period of the Emergency, was entirely justified. A year ago we had nothing but paper Corps and Armies. Now we have active Corps and Armies, which are learning how to handle themselves and to be handled effectively. The country knows from Europe's experience that trained troops are the product of drill and factories, and these we will have under the program Lieutenant General McNair is ably executing.

Service Humor

(Lt. Comdr. Robert Montgomery, the film actor, has been assigned to duty as Assistant Naval Attache of the American Embassy in London).

We've sent a man to London Town
Informed in every way,
Locuplete in purse and mien,
Learned as Attaché.
I've seen him on the silver screen
A hero in all eyes,
Maid and Mother fall for him,
Foremost are women spies.
Relieve the watch—that means to wind—
(All shipping terms he knows),
Naval Stores are meat and bread,
Keel haul, to pull and tow.
Leg and lug are coastal words—
It's certain he's a Gob,
Naval-minded with sea lore, that
Keen two-fifty-striper Bob!
No Lime in the Admiralty,
Or in our Navee, fails to note the symbol
X stands for Montgomery.

Real Danger

Randolph Field, Tex.—Maj. H. L. Mace, commander of flight operations at Randolph Field, Texas, was startled during recently held navigation training flights to nearby Texas cities when a Flying Cadet radioed that his fuel tanks were empty. Amazed that a student airplane could have been sent out without adequate gasoline supply, Major Mace radioed back for a position report after being again assured that there was no gas in the plane.

Replying to the major's request for a position report, the cadet radioed, "Oh, I'm on the ramp in front of hangar C, here at Randolph Field." Intensive "skull drill" followed.

"Did you miss your train, Lieutenant Nystrom?"
"No, I didn't like its looks, so I chased it out of the station."

—Overs and Shorts.

Son—"Why do we have eagles on all American money?"
Father—"Why, er-er, it's symbolic of swift flight."

Cpl. "MRT" submits the finishing line to the 26 July limerick which we chose immediately.

Tommy O'Rook once craved parachute fame
But now wants only relief for his pain,
For in landing in York,
He struck a pitchfork.
Which leaves him with a disability claim.

For completion on 23 Aug., Miss "OHR" has contributed the following:
There was once a gunner named Pete,
Who with a 12-incher couldn't be beat,
Said he, "Just for fun—
I'll not point the gun!"

ASK THE JOURNAL

SEND your queries to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL QUESTION EDITOR and an answer will be given in this column as soon as possible after receipt.

A. N. D.—The Army does not discharge anyone for disability without compensation. If you fail to pass your physical examination for re-enlistment, you are advised to contact the Veterans' Administration which handles such cases.

P. C. M.—No further examinations for promotion to staff sergeant, tactical group, Medical Department, will be made until after the emergency.

J. J. W.—To obtain a commission in the Medical Administrative Corps at the present time, graduation from the Medical Department's officers candidate school is required.

H. W. H.—Since there is now a waiting list for appointment as medical officer, Regular Army, no further examinations are scheduled for the near future.

The ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL sincerely regrets the misunderstanding which has developed over an explanation of temporary promotions made in this column last week. It was stated that in order to be eligible for promotion an officer of the Reserve Corps must have been on active duty prior to 9 Sept. 1940 and then was listed the active duty time necessary for promotion. While the figures on time were correct, it was not emphasized that this time must have been served prior to 9 Sept. 1940, the last date on which promotions were made.

Packard starts production of Rolls-Royce airplane engines

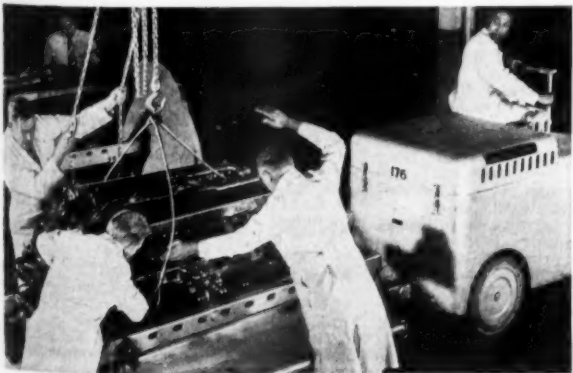

FROM VACANT LOT TO BUSY FACTORY—IN 10 MONTHS

1 SEPT. 20, 1940: Packard contracts to fill fast-action order for Rolls-Royce airplane engines for the RAF and U. S. Army Air Corps. Despite vastness of Packard factory, this meant starting from the ground up—new plant layout, new buildings, new machinery.

2 GROUND WAS BROKEN on Sept. 29. By an odd coincidence, one building site was a lot on which had stood testing sheds for the Packard-designed Liberty motor, famous in World War I. As the walls went up, machines began going in.

3 TODAY, ONLY 10 MONTHS after signing contract, Packard actually starts production on these eagerly-awaited Rolls-Royce aircraft engines. A 10-month miracle—made possible by American engineering and manufacturing genius. American production has come through!

4 MEANWHILE, PACKARD CONTINUES with another vital defense assignment—huge power plants for the Navy's "Water Wasps"—the PT boats... an assignment recently augmented by an important order for still more of these modern high-powered giants.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—No one in Washington discounts the gravity of the situation which has arisen in the Far East, as a result of the occupation of Indo-China by Japanese troops. Moving along parallel lines, the Governments of the United States, Great Britain and the Dutch East Indies, are continuing to increase economic pressure upon Japan, and, in addition, are adding to their military and naval preparations in the extreme Orient. To show that the apology for the bombing of the Tutuila at Chung King had no relation to the fundamental question of Japanese aggression, the President embargoed exports of aviation gas to the offending Empire, and authorized purchases of stocks of raw materials in Malaya and the Dutch East Indies, so as to prevent their acquisition for use in Japan. Following the advance of Japanese troops to the Indo-Chinese border of Thai, the British mobilized forces on the Malayan border of that country. The British also increased their naval forces in south Asiatic waters, and the Navy Department announced the arrival of the heavy cruisers Northampton and Salt Lake City, presumably accompanied by destroyers, at Brisbane, Australia. Further concerning Japan is the likelihood that the Soviet Union will join at least in the policy of economic war. Japanese sources confirm and Moscow denies that clashes have occurred between Russian and Japanese troops on the Manchukuo border, and while the incidents for the moment are insignificant, they can be used by one nation or the other as a pretext for an undeclared war.

Japan has expressed amazement that the reaction of the United States to her Indo-China action has proven more threatening than had been anticipated, and at the universal endorsement the American people are giving to the reprisals the President instituted. She had believed Great Britain would rumblingly accept her occupation of Indo-China and even Thai, but now she sees London acting to halt her southward movement. There is little doubt that if the Japanese enter the old Siamese Kingdom, British troops will advance to meet them. Both the British and our own Government have warned the Konoye Ministry of the serious consequences which would follow an invasion. That Ministry insists it has no designs upon Thai, that it is merely seeking better economic relations. Having profited from Japanese mediation in the shape of a slice of Indo-Chinese territory, and expecting more, the Bangkok Government is cooperating fully with Tokyo. The latest proof of this fact is the recognition it has accorded to Manchukuo. The American and British Governments have given emphatic warnings that they will not tolerate extension of Japanese power over Thai, and that country may expect to be a battlefield if the Japanese advance.

However, the Konoye Ministry realizes it cannot afford to have a war on three fronts, Thai, China and Russia, and for that reason is apt to be cautious in its moves, especially in the southern theatre, until it knows the result of the campaign in Russia. That it is not ready for war with us was indicated by the rapidity with which apologies were offered for the bombing of the Tutuila, and the assurances that Americans and their property would be safeguarded against any more "accidents." It realized that the temper of the American people would not stand for another Panay incident. On the other hand, the Japanese people, already nearing the point of economic exhaustion, as a result of the Chinese war, and facing greater suffering as a result of the economic measures applied to them, may force their Government to support its aggressions by arms. The wiser statesmen of Japan are anxious to discard the Triple Alliance and come to an understanding with the United States and Great Britain, but their influence is small at this moment, and is directed toward preventing any action which would precipitate war, at least until the Russian campaign shall have ended.

Of further concern to Japan is the report that the supplies which the United States has formally pledged to Russia, will be sent to Siberia to replace those that are being transferred to Europe. It would not be difficult for the Japanese to close Vladivostok from American help, but if this were done they fear Washington would take the position it has in connection with supplies to England, and see that they reached their destination. This would bring the show-down Japan is anxious to avoid. In the meantime, Japanese authorities are watching closely the rapprochement between the United States and Russia, and are anticipating that it may lead to the encirclement which they dread.

As a result of the protest made by Ambassador Leahy at the action of the Vichy Government in permitting Japanese occupation of Indo-China, Marshal Petain has given assurances that he will not permit German occupation of French North African possessions, including the port of Dakar. It is believed the Marshal's action, like that of Japan, was influenced by the stern resistance the Russian Armies are offering to the German forces. Should Hitler succeed in crushing Russia, there is little doubt in Washington that Petain would be compelled to change his attitude. Consequently, Secretary Hull states he will continue skeptical French promises. In an excellent article about Admiral and Mrs. Leahy, written by Taylor Henry of the Associated Press, the Ambassador was quoted as saying that his job "was difficult to define, as well as carry out." It was, he added, his task "to work harmoniously with Marshal Petain's Government; to do what I can to facilitate giving assistance to the French people whenever and wherever possible." He described Petain as a "charming old gentleman, honest as the day is long." His relations with the Marshal are friendly, though he sees him alone only on social occasions, but those with Admiral Darlan are purely official. According to Mr. Taylor, the Ambassador is popular with the people, and to that extent his mission is definitely a success.

President's Cruise—The country has been agog all week as a result of the mystery which has been thrown about the cruise the President is making. First we had the announcement of the cruise, then Secretary Knox urged the Press to abandon its journalistic activity because "the man needs a rest." Then came the report from London, which the Censor permitted to pass, that Prime Minister Churchill would be unavoidably absent from the sessions of Parliament, and might contact the President. Allowed also to pass was the statement that Mr. Hopkins, who had just returned from Moscow, had left London for a few days in the country. Subsequently inquiries at the War and Navy Departments revealed that General Marshall had departed from Washington on an "inspection trip," that Maj. Gen. Arnold had suddenly left the Capital, and that Admiral Stark had taken a much needed vacation. Secretary Knox declined to say whether or not the President would contact Mr. Churchill, Secretary Stimson was silent, and Secretary Early declined to discuss the President's plans. In the meantime, daily dispatches came from the Potomac, which were cryptic and could be interpreted as one might wish. It was stated that the Commander-in-Chief had had a conference at sea with Admiral King, Commanding the Atlantic Fleet, and it was assumed views were exchanged regarding the protection of the sea lanes along which supplies are passing to England. The mystery of the President's plans and those of Mr. Churchill, may be dissipated as we go to Press, but if a conference is being held the build-up for it is a tribute to those who evolved the idea and carried it out. In the meantime, the Navy has the responsibility of guarding the safety of its Commander-in-Chief. There is no doubt it will discharge that responsibility faithfully, but it will breathe a sigh of relief when its superior lands.

Newfoundland Base—Of interest to Army and Navy personnel who will be ordered to the expanding defense bases in Newfoundland is the following information on housing, amusements, transportation and other living conditions on the island kindly furnished by Brig. Gen. Henry W. Harms, USA, commanding general of the Newfoundland Base Command, at the request of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

"House rent in St. John's ranges from $75 per month, up," writes General Harms. "Houses are not too neat in outside appearance, but the interiors are, generally speaking, quite satisfactory, with average modern conveniences. All houses have several grates, or fireplaces for heating purposes, although some are also equipped with furnaces of hot water or steam types. Houses are large, often having 10 to 12 or more rooms. However, it is expected that quarters on the Ft. Pepperell reservation will be available sometime this fall.

"Clothing necessary for Newfoundland is about the same as that required in the average northern states, augmented by a good raincoat. Weather conditions change rapidly, especially in winter, when it may rain, snow, sleet, or the sun may shine in any given twenty-four hour period. Temperatures are not severe, seldom reaching zero, but cold, wet winds make it rather unpleasant. Overshoes or galoshes are an absolute necessity. Low cut rubbers are not found satisfactory, since snow is seldom shoveled from the sidewalks, of which there are few. Summer temperatures reach 90 to perhaps 98 degrees. Such weather, however, lasts only a couple of months, with frequent rains. Nights are generally cool, and use of cover at night is almost necessary.

"Most American families connected with the bases here purchase their food supplies through the Commissary, although some of the better stores in St. John's carry quite complete lines of stock. Greatest need at present is a good dairy. Approved milk is scarce. This condition, however, is also expected to be remedied soon.

"Recreation facilities are almost nil. The city of St. John's has three, rather third-class theatres where American films are shown, with picture changes twice each week. There are no night clubs as Americans know them. Alcoholic beverages, except ales, wines and beer, are sold only in government stores, and may not be consumed in public places. There are few good restaurants in Newfoundland. Most families do not patronize restaurants to any extent. There are a few public parks and several beaches where the swimming is good, though the water is always cold.

"Transportation facilities are rather limited. Streets are all rough (icy in winter) and run either up-hill or vice versa. Motor transportation is almost necessary if one wishes to get about conveniently, or to see any of the country. Roads outside of St. John's are poor, and few.

"Redeeming feature of the whole place is the friendly attitude of local citizenry to Americans. They are always willing to do what they can for you, with, apparently, in most cases, no thought of gain for themselves. We believe that taken by and large, the average American will enjoy a stay in Newfoundland, with its quaint and often amusing customs and manners of speech."

Naval Construction—The Navy Department announced this week that thirty-four new vessels, destined to join the United States' rapidly growing two-ocean navy, were launched by public and private shipyards during the month of July. Over the same period sixty-three new keels were laid. A breakdown on these figures, including motor torpedo boats and "district" craft, but not including landing boats and other small boats, follows:

Ships launched: one light cruiser, the USS San Diego; three destroyers, the USS Bristol, the USS Ellyson, and the USS Corry; one submarine, the USS Flying Fish; five coastal minesweepers, the USS Barbet, the USS Tapacola, the USS Turaco, the USS Aggressor, and the USS Governor; three submarine chasers; six motor torpedo boats, one covered lighter, six net tenders; two gate vessels, two seaplane wrecking derricks; and four harbor tugs.

Keels laid: one aircraft carrier, the USS Cabot; two light cruisers, the USS Biloxi and the USS Oakland; ten destroyers, the USS Duncan, USS Evans, USS John D. Henley, USS Pringle, USS Harrison, USS Lansdowne, USS John Rodgers, USS Frazier, USS Baldwin, and the USS Harding; three submarines, the USS Blackfish, the USS Herring and the USS Gunnel; eight minesweepers (fleet type), the USS Broadbill, USS Skylark, USS Starling, USS Swallow, USS Token, USS Tulmalt, USS Velocity, and the USS Adroit; two coastal minesweepers, the USS Industry and the USS Victor; one repair ship, the USS Hector; three seaplane tenders, the USS Chincoteague and the USS San Pablo; two minelayers, the USS Catskill and the USS Ozark; five submarine chasers, one covered lighter; twenty-four motor driven minesweepers, and one water barge.

The use of private shipyards for naval vessel construction has increased more than nine fold during the fiscal years which ended 30 June 1941, the Navy Department announced this week. Where 12 private yards were building naval craft in the fiscal years 1940, there were 109 so employed at the end of fiscal year 1941, and this does not include four that started and completed their contracts during the year, the announcement said. As of the close of fiscal year 1941, there were 28 states in which naval shipbuilding is being carried on, as compared to nine in fiscal year 1940. At the end of fiscal year 1941 California led in number of yards with Navy contracts, with 17 in all. New York was second with 14; Washington had nine; and Maine, eight.

Field Artillery—Intensive exercises in mapping and surveying in which all Field Artillery headquarters and firing batteries with the I Army Corps as well as topographical engineers, and Air Corps observation units participated, have been completed at Ft. Bragg, N. C. The exercises were conducted by Brig. Gen. John A. Crane, commanding the 13th Field Artillery Brigade, under the direction of general headquarters, for the purpose of testing procedures for the control of Field Artillery fire in unmapped territory.

A provisional corps headquarters was established by General Crane assisted by Lt. Col. Francis M. Christ, Maj. Francis T. Dodd, Maj. Harry B. Emigh and other officers, and in spite of six inches of rain which fell during the eleven days in which the troops were in the field, great interest was maintained by all participants and valuable information bearing upon survey and fire control procedures was obtained. The exercises emphasized that no steps should be left untaken to provide Field Artillery with air observation, if only for registration.

Visitors at the exercises included: Maj. Charles P. Cabell and James G. Pratt, office Chief of Air Corps; Capt. William C. Hall, office Chief of Engineers; Maj. Thomas North and Maj. M. P. Echols, from office Chief of Field Artillery.

Bureau of Ordnance—Graduation exercises for 98 students who have completed an intensive course in naval ordnance were held at the Washington Navy Yard last Saturday. The students previously had completed courses at leading technical and engineering schools. A formal review before Rear Adm. George T. Pettengill, USN, commandant of the Navy Yard and superintendent of the Naval Gun Factory, highlighted the review.

The exercises mark completion of the first of the first class of training technical and engineering school students as proposed recently by a board headed by Rear Adm. Harry E. Yarnell, USN-Ret. The purpose of the program is to make available for the Navy the outstanding engineering and technical talent from the nation's colleges. All the students were given commissions as ensigns, in the specialist branch in which they enrolled, U. S. Naval Reserve.

This first graduating class will be followed by additional classes, the students of which are completing courses of indoctrination at the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., and the school at Ft. Schuyler, New York.

The Navy Department also announced this week that 69 ensigns, USNR, specialist class, completed a course of indoctrination at the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, on 6 August. These graduates will be transferred to the U. S. Naval Gun Factory, Washington Navy Yard, for intensive training in ordnance production.

The graduates are officers who have graduated from leading technical and engineering schools of the country in accordance with the Yarnell Board program of making the specialist training of the young men available to the Navy.

Corps of Engineers—Orders were issued on Saturday for the immediate activation and transfer of the 35th Engineers (C). The orders issued by the War Department called for the activation of the 35th Engineers at Ft. Snelling, Minn., with the Engineer personnel at Ft. Snelling for that purpose, and immediately upon activation for the movement of the unit to Camp Joseph T. Robinson, Ark. Fillers from the Engineer Replacement Training Center at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., were also ordered moved to Camp Robinson instead of Ft. Snelling, as was originally planned.

Everything from the food the soldiers of the Army eat to the latest developments in equipment for modern warfare used by Engineer troops, were inspected on Tuesday at Ft. Belvoir, Va., by seven high ranking officials of the Office of Production Management. The inspection trip was made at the invitation of the Chief of Staff, Brig. Gen. E. H. Marks, who commands the Engineer Replacement Training Center at Ft. Belvoir, received the party and escorted the OPM officials to the various exhibits and demonstrations. The inspection was highlighted by maneuvers by a platoon of soldiers from the training center over the Ft. Belvoir obstacle course. The party included: Mr. W. S. Knudsen, director general of the OPM; Mr. J. D. Biggers, director of Production Division; Mr. E. R. Stettinius, director of Priorities; Mr. D. M. Nelson, director of Purchases; Mr. E. F. Johnson, chief of Ordnance in OPM; Lt. Col. W. B. Smith, office, Deputy Chief of Staff; Lt. Col. R. B. Lord, acting director, Bureau of Public Relations; Lt. Col. W. H. Wells, bureau of Public Relations.

The 41st Engineer Regiment, the first colored Engineer organization to be activated under the present emergency expansion program, celebrated its first anniversary on 1 August at Ft. Bragg, N. C., with a full day's program. Highlight of the activities was a review staged in honor of Maj. Gen. Jacob Devers, who will leave Ft. Bragg to take over his new duties at Ft. Knox, Ky., as commander of the Armored Forces, and the presentation of commissions to honorary officers who have shown much interest in the growth of the 41st Engineers during the past year. Lt. Col. John E. Wood, commanding officer since its activation last 1 Aug. presented commissions of honorary colonel to Maj. Gen. Devers and Col. Hamilton Fish, who spent much time with the regiment on his recent tour of duty at Fort Bragg. Commissions of honorary major were presented to Ben Dixon MacNeill, Raleigh newspaperman, T. T. Betts, district engineer of the State Highway and Public Works Commission, and Maj. John Murphy, post executive of Ft. Bragg.

Service Pension—It is a matter of satisfaction that the House of Representatives has increased the rates of pension payable to widows, children and dependent parents of veterans of the Regular Establishments, who die or have died of disease or injury incurred in service in line of duty other than during a period of war. The bill does not, however, include the feature of a pension provision for widows and other dependents of retired or disabled service personnel. The Senate should rectify this omission. Under the existing laws the widow of a World War veteran who died of non-service connected disability, and who at the time of death had a service-connected disability, may receive $30 per month, whereas the rates for the widows of non-war veterans, where the veteran died of disability incurred in line of duty, are $22, $26 and $30 per month, dependent upon age. Testimony taken by the House Pensions Committee clearly demonstrated in its judgment the necessity for revision of the laws relating to pensions for the dependents of the Regular Services. The bill drafted by the Veterans Administration, headed by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, and which the Pensions Committee approved and the House has passed, increases the $22 rate for widows under 50 years of age, to $30, the $26 rate for a widow 50 years of age to 65 years, to $35 per month; and the rate of $30 per month for a widow over 65 years of age, would be eliminated as all widows over 50 years of age would receive $35 per month. The effect of the legislation, consequently, if the Senate agree, will be to increase widows' rates $8, $9 and $5 per month. The President is known to be opposed to the measure, but if the Senate approve it with the unanimity the House has done, there is every likelihood the act will be passed over a veto. We trust the President will reconsider his attitude in the interest of equity, but if he should not do so, then that Congress will override him.

Feathered Selectees—Proof that the Army is missing no bets in the perfection of a suitable defense against parachute troops was found in an announcement from

Ft. Monmouth, N. J., last Saturday that a contingent of falcons due to arrive at the Signal Corps center for a tryout as a weapon against carrier pigeons and parachute troops. The birds were scheduled to arrive at Ft. Monmouth from California on Tuesday.

While officers at Ft. Monmouth according to word received here, emphasized that the experiments with the birds still are in the contemplated stage, soldiers have been assigned for training as falconers. Details of how the feathered birds were to bring down parachute troops were withheld, but the announcement said that sharp circular knives will be strapped to the chests of the birds with the intent that they will rip descending parachutes and cause them to collapse in mid-air.

Officers at the War Department, fresh from Ft. Benning, Ga., home of the Provisional Parachute Group, however expressed little hope that the birds could cause sufficient damage to a parachute—even if they can be trained for that purpose—to cause the 'chutes to collapse in mid-air. They pointed out that in numerous instances rips have occurred in parachutes, even to the extent of damaging an entire panel, yet the parachute still was not damaged enough to cause it to collapse.

Fresh Water Submarines—Due to the Navy's current expansion program which has jammed coastal shipyards to capacity, the Navy Department some time ago let contracts for ten of the latest-type submarines to a ship yard at Manitowoc, Wisc., located on Lake Michigan. However, the Navy is definitely not in the position of the man who built his boat in his cellar but later found it was too big to pass through the door.

While it is true that the submarines being constructed on the Great Lakes are too long for the locks of the Welland Canal, thus barring them from the St. Lawrence route to the sea; and that the New York State Canal is too shallow to float a submarine; they can and will be brought down the Chicago Drainage Canal, the Illinois and Mississippi Rivers, but only after careful adjustments are made.

According to the Navy Department, the submarines will be completed on the Great Lakes. Upon completion the superstructure, including the coning tower, will be removed, and the vessels will proceed under their own power, towing salvage pontoons, to the ocean. With the superstructure removed, the Navy Department pointed out, they will be able to clear any bridges along the route, and their shallow draft will allow them ample channel clearance. The pontoons, however, will be towed along by the subs just in case they do get stuck on some sand bank.

At some point along the Mississippi, believed to be New Orleans, the superstructure will be replaced and the submarine will proceed to New London, Conn., or some other port for delivery.

Chemical Warfare Service—Newly organized under the Office of the Chief of Chemical Warfare is the Civil Defense Division, to be headed by 1st Lt. John N. Dick, CWS. This division will study problems in conjunction with civil defense and will cooperate with the United States Office of Civilian Defense.

Col. Rollo C. Ditto, commanding officer at the Pittsburgh Chemical Warfare Procurement District, has been transferred to Huntsville Arsenal, Ala., where he will assume command. He will be succeeded at the Pittsburgh Office by Lt. Col. Raymond L. Abel. Col. Alexander Wilson, CWS, Edgewood Arsenal, Md., has been ordered to Air Force Combat Command, Bolling Field, D. C., effective 15 Sept. 1941. For the present, he will continue to serve as president of the Chemical Warfare Board. Maj. Charles S. Shadle, CWS, has reported for duty in the Office of the Chief, and has been assigned to Field Service. 2nd Lt. Fredrick C. Schmidt, CW-Res., has been ordered to active duty and will report to the Office of the Chief. Lieutenant Schmidt was previously connected with the British Purchasing Commission, New York.

Lt. Col. Edgar A. Vaughan recently directed a demonstration at Ft. Benning, Ga., during which methods to minimize the effects of gas upon armored vehicles was shown. Moving armored vehicles were "bombed" with bombs containing a by-product of molasses which has the faculty of clinging to and coloring whatever it touches. Specially trained "minute men" sprang into action immediately and established a field decontamination unit, which nullified the effect of the "bombs." Colonel Vaughan pointed out that mustard and other poison gases very easily soak into fabrics, tires, paint, and such mud as is adhering to the vehicles. He said, "Unless the gas is cleared away it will render vehicles indefinitely dangerous to whoever touches them. A man, changing a tire, for instance, might incur burns sufficient to make him a permanent casualty." Under present plans, each regiment will have a squad of men, equipped with protective uniforms, who will be trained to combat gas attacks.

Hydrographic Office—The present emergency has placed a greatly increased burden on the Hydrographic Office of the Navy Department, whose job it is to provide accurate and cheap nautical charts, sailing directions, navigators, and instruction manuals for all vessels of the United States and for navigators generally.

Normally, the Hydrographic Office issues annually approximately 450,000 nautical charts. During the last fiscal year, this number was increased five-fold to 2,331,000 copies. An expansion of Naval vessel strength added to the increase in airplanes for both the Army and Navy have created an unprecedented demand for charts. Navy officials point out also that whereas formerly foreign countries supplied many of these charts, this cooperation has been curtailed. Therefore, the Hydrographic Office must now provide a world-wide coverage of charts, and must stand ready to provide these charts on a moment's notice.

Army Industrial College—A number of high ranking Army and Navy officers appeared as lecturers at the Army Industrial College where Short Course Three is in progress. On Monday, Maj. Gen. James C. Magee, the Surgeon General, spoke on "Experiences of the Medical Department in the Field of Procurement During the Present Emergency"; on Tuesday, Capt. M. L. Ring, purchasing officer, chief of Purchasing Division of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, U. S. Navy, spoke on "Current Procurement Problems in the Navy Department"; on Thursday, Brig. Gen. Harry K. Rutherford, Executive Officer, Office Under Secretary of War spoke on "Organization and Current Activities of the Office of the Under Secretary of War"; on Friday, Brig. Gen. Charles Hines, director of the Planning Branch, Office of the Under Secretary of War, spoke on "Organization and Current Activities of the Army and Navy Munitions Board"; and on Friday Brig. Gen. Clifford L. Corbin, chief of the Supply Division, Office of the Quartermaster General, spoke on "Experiences of the Quartermaster Corps in the Field of Procurement During the Present Emergency."

Army Air Forces—Six new squadrons which will double the number of such units now available for radio students have been organized at Scott Field, Ill., the "radio university" of the Air Corps, it has been announced by Col. Wolcott P. Hayes, commandant. According to Col. Frank H. Pritchard, commanding officer of the Provisional School Group 1, the new organizations include the 367th, 368th, 369th, 370th, 371st and 372nd school squadrons and each has a present authorized strength of 100 men. The new squadrons have been assigned to Provisional School Group 1 for training but when Area No. 3, now being constructed is completed, will form the basis for a new group.

Organization work of the new units has been finished and officers in command are as follows: 370th Sch. sq.—Capt. G. D. Hooker, 1st Lt. W. P. Schuber, 1st Lt. W. J. Osman; 372nd Sch. Sq.—1st Lt. J. P. Scherer and 1st Lt. M. B. Corlew; 371th Sch. Sq.—Capt. R. L. Glanz, 1st Lt. R. E. Clark; 368th Sch. Sq.—Capt. E. R. Chytraus, 1st Lt. A. J. Fowler and 1st Lt. W. H. Melton; 367th Sch. Sq.—Capt. E. G. Fruin, 1st Lt. M. S. Wallace and 1st Lt. E. B. Groen; 369th Sch. Sq.—Capt. R. L. Jordon, 1st Lt. J. A. Brown.

Men making the new outfits were drawn from present radio students at Scott Field and also include recruits. Referred to as the "ears of the Army Air Corps," Scott Field at present is turning out about 350 graduates from its radio school every two weeks.

The Air Corps long hostility to the use of enlisted pilots will be laid aside late this month when the first contingent of 200 men who possess little formal schooling but boast a keen native intelligence will begin courses of study to prepare them for pilots. This first group of pilots will be followed, according to present plans by similar groups at five week intervals, until finally a total of 6,000 enlisted pilots have been trained. From officials of the Office of the Chief of Air Corps it was learned that selection of the first group of students is now under way, even though they state that it has not been decided what schools they will attend. For the most part the first contingent will be made up of candidates who already are in the Army, and very largely from men now in the Air Corps' ground crews, who had previously applied for training and were rejected solely on educational grounds. When these men have won their wings, however, they will fly as non-commissioned officers—the educational requirements still barring them from receiving commissions.

Eventually it is planned that 20 percent of the Army Air Corps pilot strength may be composed of non-commissioned officers. The training of the enlisted men will be identical with that given to cadets—nine weeks of elementary training in the selected civilian schools, nine in Army basic schools, and nine in the advanced flying schools, with specialized training at the close previous to tactical training which prepares them for service in individual units. How the enlisted pilots will be used has not been decided at the present time, but it is presumed that as the Air Corps progresses along toward its 50,000 pilot-a-year training program, that they will be given assignments similar to those of commissioned pilots.

Brig. Gen. Clarence L. Tinker, former commander of MacDill Field, Fla., and Col. Harry H. Young, present commander, last week wrote letters of recommendation to Pvt. Robert R. Stubbs, of MacDill Field, for his invention of a bomb device which Private Stubbs has described as an improvement on the "Molotov bread basket" which scatters bombs as it falls. It is reported that the device has been favorably endorsed by high ranking officials of the War Department following tests at the Aberdeen Proving Ground. "The idea behind the whole thing," Private Stubbs is quoted as saying, "is to cause the maximum damage with a minimum of risk." He says he first conceived the idea about three years ago, and has assigned all his rights to the War Department.

Four new Aviation Cadet Units, each made up of 20 new aviation cadets, who will be trained together at their own request, have been formed in Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin, it was announced this week by Maj. Gen. Joseph M. Cummins, commanding the Sixth Corps Area, with headquarters in Chicago.

Orders have been issued for the transfer of 26 Air Corps and Air Force units for a permanent change of station. The units involved follow: 57th Pursuit Gp. (1); from Mitchel Fld., N. Y., to Windsor Locks, Conn.; 50th Air Base Gp., from Maxwell Fld., Ala., to Baton Rouge, La.; 310th Sch. Sqdn., from Chanute Fld., Ill., to Biloxi, Miss.; 320th Sch. Sqdn., from Chanute Fld., Ill., to Wichita Falls, Tex.; 69th Air Base Gp., from Chanute Fld., Ill., to Biloxi, Miss.; 70th Air Base Gp., from Chanute Fld., Ill., to Wichita Falls, Tex.; Hqs. and Hqs. Sqdn., AC Tech. Sch., from Scott Fld., Ill., to Biloxi, Miss.; Hqs. and Hqs. Sqdn., AC Tech. Sch., from Lowry Fld., Colo., to Wichita Falls, Tex.; 311th to 309th Sch. Sqdns., inclusive, from Lowry Fld., Colo., to Wichita Falls, Tex.; and 301th to 309th Sch. Sqdns., inclusive, from Scott Fld., Ill., to Biloxi.

Chaplain Corps—Eight appointments to the Chaplains Corps of the regular army will be made in approximately six weeks. The appointments are to be made from a list of 60 clergymen who completed examinations for appointment on 30 July.

Learning that five Army convoys would camp overnight outside Weed, Calif., the congregation of the Weed Community Church got busy and held open house for the soldiers. Social rooms were opened and refreshments served. On the five evenings, over 1,000 men were entertained and 135 cakes were served.

The youngest chaplain in the Army, 1st Lt. George S. Wilson, was transferred on 31 July from Scott Field, Ill., to Ft. Logan, Colo., where he will be post chaplain. Lieutenant Wilson, 25, was commissioned 17 January, leaving his position as pastor of the Summer Place Methodist Church at Buffalo, N. Y.

Thirteen new chapels, each to cost approximately $15,000, are now under construction at Ft. Benning, Ga., and are expected to be completed late in September. The chapels, all equipped with electric organs and moveable altars, will provide accommodations for an additional 5,200 soldiers and will permit the holding of Catholic and Protestant services simultaneously. Chaplain Shure, acting post chaplain, announced that assignment of additional chaplains to the post is expected shortly.

Numerous requests for "typical sermons" being preached by Army chaplains has prompted the office of the Chief of Chaplains to undertake a project by which all chaplains on duty are to submit copies or outlines of one or two of their best sermons preached while on active duty. It is planned to make these sermons available to the public.

The Defense Program

Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii, was awarded in August 1939 and the work was originally scheduled for completion in August 1942. It was actually commissioned on 15 February 1941 and the original layout is now substantially complete. Other air bases in the Pacific Islands, in Alaska and in the Caribbean area, all originally scheduled for 1942 will be completed and in operation this year.

Similarly rapid progress has been made on all parts of the program within the United States. Particularly satisfactory has been the record made in the dry dock program. Twenty graving docks and one floating dry dock are under construction involving an expenditure of over $100,000,000. The largest dry docks are 1100 feet long, 142 feet wide at the floor and have a draft of 46 feet above the blocks. By adopting various speed-up methods the construction time is being greatly reduced. A capital ship and double destroyer dock at Pearl Harbor started in January in 1940 and originally scheduled for completion in October 1942 are now expected to be ready in September of this year, a reduction of time of construction from 33 months to 20 months. The shipbuilding dry dock at Philadelphia which is of the maximum size was started in June 1940 and it is now sufficiently completed so that it can be pumped down only a little over one year from date of commencement of work.

Increased Requirements

Paralleling the expansion in docking facilities, shops, weight handling equipment, store houses and all the requirements of ship construction and repair have been greatly increased.

The Naval air stations at Jacksonville, Corpus Christi and Quonset Point, the latter two costing in excess of $25,000,000 each are in service, Quonset Point awaiting formal commissioning on 15 July.

The chain of sites beginning with Newfoundland and continuing through Bermuda, the Bahamas, Antigua, St. Lucia, Trinidad and British Guiana and with an operating air station in Jamaica are being built up for fleet air bases and patrol operations. The defense of the Caribbean also are being strengthened by the completion of the air station at San Juan, further improvements at Guantanamo and the Canal Zone and the construction of a new fleet anchorage and base at Roosevelt Roads, Vieques at the eastern end of Puerto Rico. The latter development, now begun, will ultimately become a $100,000,000 project.

The extent of the program authorized to date and the distribution of this work is best illustrated in the following summary:

Shipbuilding and ship repair facilities	$312,907,500
Fleet facilities	124,108,000
Aeronautic facilities	279,937,000
Storage facilities	54,900,000

Second Corps Area News

The new Anti-Tank Battalion of the 44th Division, which remained at Ft. Dix while the rest of the division journeyed to Virginia for maneuvers, has been awaiting orders from the division commander, Maj. Gen. Clifford R. Powell, to join the anti-tank companies of the four infantry regiments for three weeks of training at the A. P. Hill Military Reservation in Virginia.

Ft. Hamilton, N. Y.

Officials of the executive committee of Brooklyn's United Service Organization visited Ft. Hamilton, Tuesday, 29 July, as guests of Col. Clarence Lininger, post commander and Lt. Col. George L. Clarke, executive officer.

Ft. Hancock, N. J.

The second contingent of Cadets from the U. S. Military Academy arrived at Ft. Hancock on Monday, 28 July, for their week of intensive practical training in the many phases of Coast Artillery. They observed demonstration firing of all the defense weapons on the Post, and also manned them, themselves, just as the first contingent had done the week before. On Tuesday, 29 July, daylight and night anti-aircraft firing was held, the 62nd C.A. (AA), Ft. Totten, N. Y., demonstrated the firing of the piece, and then the Cadets took over. Reports of the firing and the employment of the search lights were highly favorable.

The men of Ft. Hancock marched in two parades recently. On Friday evening, 25 July, 1,000 men and officers from all regiments participated in a defense parade at Sea Bright, N. J. The parade, postponed on two previous occasions because of rain, was the largest of its type ever to be held in Monmouth County. On Tuesday evening, 29 July, 1,200 marched in a parade marking the opening of the USO Drive in Highlands. The 245th C.A. band, the 52nd C.A. band, field cars, coast guard equipment, the first aid squad and the fire department participated. The V.F.W., American Legion, and the Sons and Daughters of Liberty also marched.

Ft. Ontario, N. Y.

The 369th Coast Artillery (AA) is at Pine Camp, N. Y., undergoing a field training inspection. Headquarters Company, 1212th Service Unit, has been maintaining the guard of the post during their absence but will be relieved 4 Aug. when the 369th will return to continue its anti-aircraft training.

Work is progressing rapidly on the $73,000 building project at Ft. Ontario, included in the contract are a chapel, officer's mess, enlisted men's recreation hall, guest house, quartermaster administration building and a radio shelter. According to the contract, these buildings will be completed and ready to be occupied by the last of August.

Plattsburg Barracks, N. Y.

Nine brand new Jeeps, the first ever to be used at Plattsburg Barracks, arrived Tuesday, 29 July, and were added to the equipment of the 36th Engineers Regiment (combat). Members of the motor section of the Regiment lost no time in taking the nine out on the road for test runs. Motor Sergeant Clyde Meadows, lead his crew on a nine-mile cross-country jaunt, up hill and down dale on one of the worst wagon track roads that he could find. With the addition of these jeeps to the regiment, the mechanized equipment of the regiment is slowly approaching full strength, which will total 212 vehicles.

The 71st Field Artillery Brigade stationed at Ft. Ethan Allen will hold a three day maneuver this coming week at the Macomb Military Reservation at Schuylers Falls. The 36th Engineer Regiment (combat) will also be at the reservation for maneuvers and will erect a 25-ton pontoon bridge over the Saranac River which the 71st Field Artillery brigade will cross. The brigade will have all of its trucks but not all of its heavy weapons.

West Point Cadets Travel

Maj. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, superintendent of the United States Military Academy, flew last week to Ft. Hancock, N. J., where the senior class of cadets spent a week of intense study of anti-aircraft weapons.

General Eichelberger, who was accompanied on this one day trip by Lt. Walter W. Kinney, aide, saw the 190 cadets, comprising one-half of the Military Academy's next graduating class, inspect and later man and fire three-inch anti-aircraft and eight-inch railway guns. The training trip to Ft. Hancock is one of several arranged for the Cadets during the summer. Already, they have visited Langley Field, Va., Ft. Benning, Ga., and Ft. Dix, N. J., with a trip scheduled in August to the field artillery reservation at Tobyhanna, Pa.

Additional Duty Assigned

Maj. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., commander of the Second Armored Division, assumed additional duty as commanding general of Ft. Benning, Ga., on 2 August, when Maj. Gen. Lloyd R. Fredendall left for a short leave of absence prior to assuming duties as commander of the II Army Corps.

We learned plenty in Singapore

If Singapore's heat and humidity are tough on white men, they're vicious on typewriters.

Bearings that operated perfectly everywhere else would swell . . . rust-resisting finishes would rust.

As a result of our Singapore experiences, today's Royal has non-corrosive hand levers, special bearings not affected by heat and humidity, and its inner parts are sprayed with rust-repelling oil.

Royal can take it—even in Singapore!

AS an air commander in the R.A.F., the Duke of Kent, youngest brother of King George VI of England, will come to Washington the end of this month. He is to go first to Hyde Park as the guest of the President, and with him will come to Washington on the 24th, and the following day the Prince will go to Norfolk by plane to inspect naval facilities and fly back to the Capital to dine that night at the White House with the President. The next day he plans to go to Baltimore to inspect the Glenn L. Martin plant which is making planes for Britain.

MRS. GEORGE G. SOSMAN recent bride of Mr. Sosman, of Westfield, N. J. She was the Miss Marjorie Murphy, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. John George Murphy, USA.

Weddings and Engagements

THE Church of the Wayfarer, Carmel-by-the-Sea, Calif., was the scene of an impressive military wedding on 23 July when Miss Billie Raymond, the lovely daughter of Maj. Harold C. Raymond, 40th Field Artillery, Camp Roberts, and Mrs. Raymond, became the bride of Lt. Water Ferrell Winton, Jr., son of Col. and Mrs. Walter F. Winton of Ft. Collins, Col.

The ceremony was performed at four o'clock by Chaplain G. J. McMurphy of Ft. Ord, who has been a close friend of the family for many years. A program of organ music was played by Ralph Linsley of Pasadena, and the soloist was Miss Jo Ellen Humphries, who sang "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly."

The bride entered on the arm of her father, by whom she was given in marriage, and was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man and classmate, Lt. Joseph R. Ruebel, AC from Pasadena.

Her gown of candlelight satin was made with a softly shirred bodice which had long tight-fitting sleeves. Points of Duchess lace outlined the sweetheart neckline, and the softly gathered skirt extended into a long graceful train. The full length veil of bridal illusion was held in place by the traditional sprays of orange blossoms on each side of a shirred coronet, and she carried a bouquet of gardenias and bouvardia.

The bride was preceded to the altar by her maid of honor, Miss Louise Clark, daughter of Col. Francis W. Clark, commanding Presidio of Monterey, and Mrs. Clark, and her bridesmaid, Miss Jo Ellen Humphries, daughter of Lt. Col. Otho W. Humphries, Corps Area Quartermaster, San Francisco, and Mrs. Humphries.

The ushers were: Lts. Joseph Dietz, Urey Alexander, Gus Broberg and Donald Beere, all of Ft. Ord, who formed a glittering arch of sabres for the recessional of the wedding party.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the Pine Inn. The bride's table was centered with a tiered wedding cake, which the bride, following the Army tradition, cut with her husband's sabre. The bride is a graduate of Stephens' College, class of 1939, and she received her Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Kentucky in June. She is a member of Kappa Delta Sorority.

Lieutenant Winton is a graduate of West Point Military Academy, class of 1940. His parents were unable to be present for the wedding.

Lieutenant Winton and his bride left on their wedding trip, which will eventually take them to Ft. Sam Houston, Texas, where Lieutenant Winton is stationed with the 9th Infantry.

Miss Marjorie Kingsland Bassler, daughter of Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. Robert Edward Bassler, was married at 1 o'clock on Saturday 2 August to Lt. Warren Paine Baker, USMC, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Baker, of West Roxbury, Mass., at a pretty military wedding in the Naval Training Station Chapel, at Newport, R. I.

Chaplain Clinton Neyman, USN, performed the ceremony.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a gown of white mouseline de soie, with a finger tip veil caught up with orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of white asters, freesias, and babies' breath, with a cascade of ribbons and flowers.

Miss Jean Compo, daughter of Comdr. and Mrs. George L. Compo of Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, acted as maid of honor. Miss Ena Shackford, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. C. C. Shackford, USN-Ret. of Newport, R. I., and Miss Nancy Clark, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Glenmore F. Clark, (MC), USN of Portsmouth, N. H., were the bride's other attendants.

Mr. Harry Baker, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man, and the ushers included: Lt. J. P. Plichta, (CEC), USN, Ens. W. A. Lawrence, Ens. R. U. Blades, Ens. C. K. Urlass, all of the Civil Engineer Corps, USNR, and Ens. J. Stefans and Ens. E. J. Coffey, USNR.

The bride and bridegroom passed under the "arch of steel," formed by the ushers. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held in the main ball room of the Viking Hotel.

Lieutenant Baker attended Norwich University, and is now on duty at the Marine Barracks, Parris Island, S. C., where he was assigned after completing sea duty on the USS "RANGER."

The bride attended New London College for Women, at New London, Conn., and Temple University, at Philadelphia, Pa.

At a wedding of unusual beauty Saturday afternoon, 26 July in the post chapel, at Ft. Lewis, Wash., Miss Marjorie Murphy, of DuPont, became the bride of Mr. George Gibson Sosman of Westfield, N. J., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Browning Sosman.

The bride, the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. John George Murphy was given in marriage by Maj. John Chester of Ft. Lewis, as Colonel Murphy was unable to leave his station at Ft. Richardson, Anchorage, Alaska for the ceremony.

Merlin Engines Produced

"The British have made the Merlin the hard way. In America the hard way will be made not easy, but easier." Thus spoke Maj. Gen. George H. Brett, Chief of the Air Corps, last week at ceremonies celebrating the beginning production of Rolls Royce Merlin engines by the Packard Motor Car Company, Detroit, Mich.

General Brett, whose speech was broadcast, pointed out that it takes Aircraft to fight Aircraft, and that airplanes are worthless without engines. Comparing American and British production of these engines, General Brett said, "As the British handled it, the Rolls Royce was practically a handmade engine; even under the terrible beating of repeated bombing raids, the Rolls Royce never was produced by methods of mass production such as American genius has developed."

Explaining the importance of the Merlin engine, General Brett asserted that it is one of the big reasons why the British Royal Air Force has been able to hold off the Germans.

The engines soon to come rolling off the assembly line at the Packard factory in Detroit will be divided between the United States and Britain.

Mrs. Wood Sponsors New Ship

Secretary of the Navy Knox this week designated Mrs. Ralph Wood, wife of Capt. Ralph Wood, USN, as sponsor for the Seaplane Tender Mackinac.

Army Riots

Three soldiers were killed and six others injured, one of them seriously, in rioting and a gunfight at two widely separated Army camps this week. The riot occurred at Ft. Knox, Ky., while the gunfight occurred near Ft. Bragg, N. C. Even while boards of inquiry were sifting evidence in the two cases, Congressman Gerald W. Landis, of Indiana, asked the War Department for a detailed report on the riot at Ft. Knox.

Victim of the shooting was Pvt. Carl R. McClellan, 19, of Bicknell, Ind. He was struck in the left shoulder by a ricocheting bullet fired by a guard, Colonel Briscoe, post commander, disclosed. He died in the post hospital Thursday afternoon, 31 July.

It was said that the rioting was touched off when a prisoner using a makeshift ladder, climbed over two wire fences surrounding the guardhouse and escaped. Guards discovered the soldier escaping and fired several shots at him but he made a getaway, only to be captured 31 July.

At the same time that Colonel Briscoe promised ballistic tests would be made on the guards' rifles to determine which guard fired the fatal shot. Congressman Landis, in an open letter to Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, declared: "that all accounts of the tragedy indicate that Private McClellan was wholly blameless."

"He was the 'innocent bystander' in a breach of army discipline which shocks the entire nation," Landis said.

"I feel that the extraordinary circumstances in this case merit more than the routine inquiry of the Army Officers in charge at Ft. Knox," Landis said. "The safety of the enlisted men at the hands of their own officers is a proper concern for the Committee on Military Affairs."

At the same time there were many highly controversial discussions between non-official sources close to the War Department, on the high percentage of prisoners confined in the Ft. Knox guardhouse.

Pointing out that there were approximately 350 prisoners involved in the riot—and presumably some who were not—these sources placed the number of soldiers at Ft. Knox at approximately 35,000 which would indicate that about one per cent of the soldiers at Ft. Knox were confined in the guardhouse at the time of the riot.

Meanwhile this week at Ft. Bragg, Army officers ordered the movement of some 4,000 colored troops from Ft. Bragg to a nearby camp in order to prevent racial outburst over a gunfight on Wednesday in which two soldiers were killed and six others wounded, one seriously.

Acting Chief Signal Officer

Brig. Gen. Dawson Olmstead, commanding general of Ft. Monmouth, N. J., reported to Washington this week to serve as Acting Chief Signal Officer during the absence of Maj. Gen. Joseph O. Mauborgne. General Mauborgne left Washington 7 August on a tour of inspection from which he will not return until the first of September. General Mauborgne was expected to go first to 4th Corps Area headquarters at Atlanta, Ga., going on from there to visit the headquarters of the other eight corps areas and the four field armies. While General Olmstead serves as Chief Signal Officer, Brig. Gen. George L. Van Dusen, commander of the Signal Corps Training Activities at Ft. Monmouth, will have additional duty as post commander.

U. S. COAST GUARD

POWER to requisition motorboats and yachts for use by the Coast Guard was asked this week by the Treasury Department, which termed results of attempts to obtain small craft on a loan basis from their owners "disappointing" thus far.

In letters to the House and Senate, Acting Secretary of the Treasury Gaston asked enactment of legislation "to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to requisition or purchase motorboats, yachts and similar vessels for Coast Guard use."

Said Mr. Gaston, "This proposed legislation is designed to enable the Coast Guard to be adequately supplied with relatively small craft for the purpose of carrying out its maritime police functions, particularly the regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury and the President governing anchorages and movements of vessels in territorial waters. . . . It was hoped that sufficient vessels for such use could be obtained through voluntary loans by their owners under the provisions of Title I of the Coast Guard and Auxiliary Act of 1941, but results thus far have been disappointing. Only 55 boats have been loaned under this act to date, and the Coast Guard has need at this time of approximately 300."

There is not sufficient time or shipbuilding capacity to permit construction of the necessary craft by the Coast Guard, the Acting Secretary said.

The proposed bill provides: "That, during any period of national emergency proclaimed by the President, the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to requisition or purchase, for the use of the Coast Guard in the performance of its maritime police functions, any motorboat, yacht or other vessel owned by a citizen or citizens of the United States and suitable for patrolling harbors, bays, roadsteads and other navigable waters of the United States."

Other sections of the bill prescribe the method of payment for boats taken, authorize appropriation of necessary funds and make provision for transfer to the Secretary of the Navy of the authority given to the Secretary of the Treasury in the event the Coast Guard should operate as a part of the Navy at any time.

New Station

Speaking at the dedication ceremonies held on Coast Guard Day, 4 August, for the new Coast Guard Station at Atlantic City, N. J., Rear Adm. Russell R. Waesche, commandant of the U. S. Coast Guard, said, "I am very happy to have the pleasure and honor to be here in Atlantic City on this occasion, not only to join with you in the dedication of this new and important addition to the Coast Guard chain of lifeboat stations along our coast line, but to pay tribute to a Service which has for 151 years acted as the guardian along our coast, striving each succeeding year to give added lustre to the record of the past."

Transfer Activities

The Navy Department announced last week that all activities of the Coast Guard in the Honolulu district, including personnel and equipment, have been transferred to the jurisdiction of the Navy Department for the duration of the national emergency. Coast Guard facilities in this district will continue to provide necessary assistance to navigation.

New Construction

Bids will be opened on 22 August for the construction of radio buildings and accessories, including roads at the Chicago Coast Guard Radio Site, at Northbrook, Ill.

Operations

A resume of Coast Guard activities for the week 25 July to 1 August, 1941 contains the following information:

On 31 July, the Cutter Nansemond arrived at the Coast Guard Yard where the vessel will undergo certain repairs and alterations. It is expected that when conversion work to this vessel is completed she will be able to service the smaller aids to navigation—this in addition to her regular assigned patrol duties.

On 22 July, the Maritime Service Training Vessel American Sailor was placed in commission at the Coast Guard Yard. The permanent station of the vessel is Heuneme, Calif., effective upon the date of commissioning. The vessel departed the Coast Guard Yard, Curtis Bay, Md. on 22 July for New York, N. Y., where approximately 350 apprentice seamen enrollees were taken aboard for the trip to the West Coast. The American Sailor departed New York on 28 July for her new station at Heuneme.

The Maritime Training Vessel Vema was placed in commission at Hoffman Island, New York, on 26 July 1941. The vessel will be employed in the training of Maritime Service personnel.

The Cutters Hamilton, Bibb and Carabasset have been engaged in short range battle practice off the Virginia Capes during the past week.

FINANCE

Financial Digest

The Administration's program for curbing inflation is now in process of development and execution. The House of Representatives has passed the bill levying taxes to raise an additional $3.2 billions of revenue. Eliminated from the bill at the suggestion of the President and over the opposition of the Ways and Means Committee, was the provision requiring joint returns by married couples, which the Committee estimated would produce $323 millions. The Senate Finance Committee, with Senator George, a tax expert as Chairman, will make numerous modifications in the measure, and it is suggested will revise income tax schedules so as to produce another billion. There is a strong sentiment in the Senate to lower exemptions so as to reach the purchasing power which has been so greatly enlarged as a result of government defense expenditures. The House bill imposes the heaviest part of the additional burden upon business and the upper five per cent income tax group, which means that savings and productivity would be penalized, and purchasing power and consumption relatively would escape.

Another feature of the Administration's program is the Price-Control bill, which contains no provision for the control of wages, and permits a ceiling on farm prices at 110 per cent of parity. Price Administrator Henderson argued before the House Banking Committee that if the Government undertook to curtail wages, it would be controlling employees also. Moreover, he did not regard it necessary to include in a price control bill utility costs, transportation costs, interest charges and personal services, though he believes that unless these costs should be kept in bounds it would be impossible to control inflation. It is the view of economists in Congress that unless the pending bill be amended so as to enable ceilings to be placed on wages and farm prices, inflation is certain. Involved in this matter are priorities, but as a result of inadequate administration, industry is confused.

The Treasury had believed that increased wages would result in large buying of National Defense bonds and savings stamps. To date, however, the purchases have been negligible, nor is there any rush for the new tax savings securities being placed on the market.

In the light of the facts, it is likely Congress will reexamine the entire governmental program, and seek through Senate revision of the tax bill and a more effective control measure to deal more satisfactorily with the inflation danger. However, the Labor and Farm blocs are powerful, and they will oppose vigorously any control of wages or farm prices. The matter of priorities is one of administration, as is that of the sale of defense bonds and stamps. It is known these matters are receiving attention, and early action is forecast with respect to them.

Panama Canal Zone.

Colonel Barber has been the recipient of numerous medals covering all phases of his long and varied career.

Col. Constantine Marrast Perkins, USMC-Ret., died on 2 August, in Washington, D. C. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Stella C. Perkins, Washington, D. C., and a son, Lt. Comdr. Whitley Perkins, USN-Ret., Los Angeles, Calif.

Colonel Perkins was appointed a cadet midshipman in 1875, and was transferred to the Marine Corps in 1884 with the rank of second lieutenant. Retired on 31 Dec. 1907, Colonel Perkins was reinstated to the active list with rank of colonel on 22 July 1915. He served in this capacity until 10 June 1924, when he was retired because of disability.

Colonel Perkins saw service on board many Navy vessels as well as shore duty in various places in the United States. He also had foreign service in the Philippine Islands, Panama Canal Zone, Santo Domingo, and Japan. Among other awards, Colonel Perkins held the Spanish Campaign and Victory Medals.

Merchant Marine

Responding to an invitation by the Maritime Commission, approximately 20 cement concrete construction officials and experts met yesterday at Washington to consider the feasibility of building reinforced concrete tow barges suitable for transporting oil, grain, and other bulk commodities. As long as it appeared possible to meet emergency needs with steel vessels, the commission was not willing to consider the undertaking of construction of concrete ships; now, however, with steel capacity taxed to the limit, the commission is greatly interested in the possibility of concrete ships.

Conference plans called for the discussion of the design of barges to be built and also the facilities of the building yards in which they may be constructed. For the present, the commission expects to limit consideration of concrete construction to tow barges, which would carry at least 6,000 deadweight tons per barge with a maximum draft of 30 feet when loaded. These barges would be designed to operate without personnel on board, thus eliminating expensive and complex equipment.

Great emphasis was placed upon early delivery of these new ships, with the commission expressing the hope that possibly 100 may be delivered by July, 1942.

Charter Rate Set

Co-incident with the request by President Roosevelt for enactment by Congress of legislation establishing a ceiling on prices and rents, the Maritime Commission recently announced a new scale of maximum time charter rates for United States and foreign flag vessels, effective 1 August. This new scale will reduce rates materially.

Acquire Foreign Ships

The Maritime Commission announced last week that seven foreign cargo vessels acquired by the United States under the provisions of the Ship Requisition Act have been put into active service. First of the 28 sabotaged Axis ships whose damage has been repaired, the Italian freighter Clara began loading last week at Norfolk, Va. The Clara, least damaged of the lot, was repaired under supervision of the Maritime Commission.

At the same time, six other vessels were allocated to the Navy and American operators in national defense trade routes. The Danish freighters Marla and Tunis have been turned over to the Navy. The Tunis had earlier been chartered to the Marine Transport Co., N. Y. To replace the Tunis, the Marine Transport Co., will charter the Danish vessel Paula, which was requisitioned in New York last Saturday.

Two other Danish vessels, the Lexa Maersk and P. N. Damm, and the German freighter Arauca have been chartered to the Grace Line and Atlantic Steamship Co., respectively, for service in moving Chilean nitrates to America.

Acting in accordance with the Good Neighbor Policy, the commission announced last week that nine United States flag ships have been allocated to carry coal to South America where a shortage exists due to war conditions. The withdrawal of British tramp freighters has created the shortage which the commission has acted to relieve.

New Personnel Added

Mr. Thomas J. Stevenson, president, Bulk Carriers Corp., New York, N. Y., is serving during the emergency as adviser and assistant to the Director of Operations and Traffic of the Maritime Commission.

Mark O'Dea, New York advertising executive, has been appointed Director of Information for the Maritime Commission and will succeed Carlton Skinner who has been called to active duty as a Coast Guard officer. Mr. Skinner was in turn serving as acting director during the absence of Robert W. Horton, now director of public relations, Office of Production Management.

The War Situation

Warfare in its broadest sense—on the land and the sea and in the air—has reached a degree of intensity far greater than at any time since Hitler launched his blitzkrieg against Poland in September 1939. Accurate and detailed information as to current situations is not obtainable and only broad inferences as to the trends in the several theatres can be made.

The key front remains the Atlantic Ocean and the western shores of Europe where Hitler must win his final victory. The trend on this front is definitely in favor of Great Britain and her Allies. Their shipping losses are being reduced and Nazi bombings of the British Isles are at a minimum. It is safe to assume that this trend will continue until Hitler is able, first, to overcome Russian resistance as he did that of Western Europe in 1940, and second, to organize for extensive air and sea operations, to be undertaken in the Battle of the Atlantic, in event of a Russian defeat.

It is reported that Great Britain is landing additional British, Australian and Indian troops at Singapore and that battleships of the Queen Elizabeth class have been observed cruising in the Gulf of Siam. These moves are to counter the Japanese occupation of French Indo-China which places Japan in well-developed French bases. From these bases Japan can strike at the Philippines, the East Indies, the Malay States and China (Burma Road) through Thailand. However, the support of these forces depends on the sea power of Japan, which is far stronger in that theatre than that of any other power at the present time. Russian aircraft and submarines at Vladivostok are less than 700 miles from Japan's vital facilities and lines of communications to China and the south. However, Japan is in a position to blockade Vladivostok and prevent munitions and supplies reaching Russia through that port until its seapower is swept from the seas.

The actual anti-Axis forces in the Far Eastern theatre are closely guarded secrets. It is understood that at least 20,000 United States Regular Army troops are in the Philippines, and that the Philippine Army which is now a part of the United States forces can muster 150,000 men.

The Washington and London Treaties expired December 31, 1936, and since that time there has been no limit to the development of a strongly fortified position in the Philippines. The key of the defenses is the Island of Corregidor which has in the course of time become one of the most strongly fortified positions in the world.

The organization of a United States Army in the Philippines under the command of Lieutenant General MacArthur is a very definite move to further strengthen anti-Axis forces there.

SIX, SEVEN MILES UP! In air no man can breathe—and live! Motors—now even pilots are "super-charged." On the stationary bicycle (above) Marshall Headle, chief test pilot of Lockheed, breathes pure oxygen for 30 minutes before a test flight in Lockheed's new interceptor—one of America's newest high-altitude fighters.

CLIMBS A MILE A MINUTE—dives at speeds which are Army secrets. They call her "Lightning." Test pilot Headle clammers into the cockpit, switches from a pocket oxygen flask to his cabin supply, and streaks for the stratosphere. He's test-flown 300 different planes. But when he lands, it's always "...Now for a Camel."

YOU CAN'T SEE HIM up there. You can scarcely hear the hum of his motors. Then his voice comes into the radio tower: "Headle—35,000 feet—diving now." And as he comes plummeting down in that shrieking power-dive, you just hope! Seconds later—yes, seconds—he's landing. And here he is (above) cool, calm, lighting up a Camel.

THE SMOKE'S THE THING!

EXTRA SMOKES
PER PACK!

"Less nicotine in the smoke means more mildness to me,"
says test pilot Marshall Headle (above),
as he lights up his... and America's... favorite cigarette

THERE may be little traffic at 35,000 feet, but test-diving any new, untried plane is no Sunday joy-ride. No, not even for a veteran like Marshall Headle (above).

Naturally, cigarette mildness is important to Marshall Headle. And in the slower-burning cigarette of costlier tobaccos...Camels...he gets extra mildness—with less nicotine in the smoke.

What cigarette are you smoking now? Chances are it's one of the five included in the nicotine tests reported above at the left—tests which trace Camel's advantage right down to the actual smoke itself. Obviously, the smoke's the thing!

Try Camels. For convenience—economy—buy the carton.
